Stampede To Cut Income Tax Predicted If Profits Levy Dies

Russian Troops Moving Back To Barracks, W. Berlin Hears

Soviets Satisfied Red Regime In Control

BERLIN, June 28 (AP)—The Russians appeared satisfied today that East Germany's Communist regime has recovered from the June 17 workers' revolt enough to govern again without the open backing of Red Army bayonets.

Throughout the Soviet zone, Communist leaders staged "loyalty" rallies as Russian commanders relaxed the tight military controls that smashed the rebellion.

Reds, In Savage Fighting, Gouge Out New Gains

SEOUL, Monday, June 29 (AP)—Attacking Chinese Reds gouged out new gains against South Korean troops last night and early today on both the Western and Eastern Korean Fronts. Fighting was savage.

In the west, the Reds drove South Korean defenders off two outposts on the Little Nori sector. The sector is west of Yonchon and about 40 miles north of Seoul.

In the east, Red infantrymen stormed 1,500-foot Lookout Mountain for the sixth time in three days and drove South Koreans off its crest. Lookout is on the west side of the Pukhan River and about eight miles southeast of Kumsong.

There were no new Red gains reported in the critical area on the east side of the Pukhan. There the Communists broke through for five-mile gains two weeks ago and another mile Saturday, putting them within 12 miles of the big hydro-electric Hwachon Reservoir.

In the west, a reinforced regiment—3,000 to 3,500 men—attacked at 8:30 p.m. last night. By 11, they had driven South Koreans from a hill called Outpost Queen. Fighting was hand-to-hand in crevice trenches.

Earlier, a smaller Red force drove the South Koreans off Outpost Bak.

Bitter fighting continued in the hills early today.

Massed allied artillery pounded the Reds. Huge 240 mm. (9.5 inch) howitzers were used in the bombardment.

The Eastern Front attack was a continuation of a three-day fight for Lookout Mountain which had served as a new anchor for the Pukhan front south of the lost Capitol Hill position.

By early morning the Chinese were maneuvering an estimated three battalions on the long ridge-line running toward the southwest and dominated by Lookout.

Ship Salvage Bids Asked

WASHINGTON, June 28 (INS)—The government invited salvage firms today to bid on 11 ships sunk by the Germans in the Gulf of Mexico during World War II.

ARSON SUSPECT—William A. Valcourt (left), 52, talks to a police official in Boston after he was arrested in connection with an apartment house fire which claimed the lives of three women. ## 2,000 Japanese Killed, Missing, Injured In Flood TOKYO, Monday, June 29 (AP)—Flood waters, fed by six days of torrential rains, raged ever higher today on Japan's southern island of Kyushu. The dead, missing and injured exceeded 2,000.

National police at Fukuoka, Kyushu's largest city, reported 376 dead, 1,060 missing and 934 injured. More than 700,000 homeless refugees squatted on muddy hilltops and watched the flood crest rise toward them. More rain was forecast. Already 20 inches have fallen.

The flooded Northern half of Kyushu—an area about the size of New Jersey—was a huge lake with hills and mountains jutting out like islets. On these islets, the hundreds of thousands waited and wept.

Landslides Crush Houses

Rescue workers found mothers crying over babies lost in floodwaters. Their cries mingled with those of men who had lost entire families.

Many of the dead were pulled out of houses crushed by landslides. Many of the missing were swept away by swollen rivers which broke dikes at 1,448 places.

At Kumamoto, Central Kyushu, 36 elderly men and women were buried alive when an asylum collapsed.

At Moji, in the Northernmost part of Kyushu, a landslide buried 80 homes. Twenty-five men still were buried under tons of rock and mud today.

Villages Disappear

Police officials said several villages—with all homes and people—disappeared.

The newspaper Asahi estimated 2,852 homes have been destroyed or completely washed away and 149,667 other homes have been inundated.

American troops worked side by side with Japanese rescue workers.

President Faces Toughest Battle In House Today

Odds Appear To Be With Administration

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—A congressional rush to cut personal income taxes was predicted today if President Eisenhower loses his crucial House battle tomorrow to extend the excess profits tax.

Leaders on both sides cited income tax rates as one of several issues at stake which far overshadow the profits tax bill itself.

The profits bill, extending the tax six months beyond June 30, would raise less than 700 million dollars. This is not even 1 per cent of Eisenhower's spending budget. It would affect only about 20,000 corporations, or one out of every 21 in the country.

Odds Appear With Ike

This bill normally would stir only a modest ripple in congressional waters. Yet it stands now as the center of one of the biggest storms in Congress this year, stirring dramatic intra-party strife. It presents Eisenhower with his toughest, roughest, closest House battle yet.

Most leaders said the odds appeared to be with the administration, but they were far from certain and the fight could swing on a handful of votes.

Why have both sides spurred compromise and pressed headlong into the scrap, employing drastic and unprecedented tactics, when the bill itself amounts to so little from a revenue standpoint?

Interviews with administration officials and leaders on both sides in Congress produced this picture: First, especially in the administration, there is a strong belief that if the corporation profits tax dies Congress will be in an intolerable political situation unless it quickly provides tax cuts for individuals, too.

Size Of Deficit At Stake

So the administration feels that unless the profits tax can be extended, it will lose also all over a billion and a half dollars in income taxes, bringing the total loss to $2 1/2 billion.

Eisenhower's estimate is that his deficit will be about 6 1/2 billion dollars for the fiscal year starting July 1, under present tax laws. If the profits tax is extended, the red ink figure could be brought below six billion.

But if the tax dies, the administration fears the deficit would soar above eight billion—a bigger figure than President Truman chalked except in World War II.

Some Coal Mines May Not Reopen

PITTSBURGH, June 28 (AP)—A top district officer of the United Mine Workers expressed fear tonight that some of the nation's 400,000 UMW members now on a 10-day vacation may not return to work when the vacation ends July 6.

"The coal industry is in a bad way," said John Busarello, president of UMW District 5. "Some of the coal operators were really stretching a point to keep the men working until the vacation period started last Friday midnight. I know that many small mines will not reopen immediately after the vacations end and I fear that some large mines will remain closed for awhile, too."

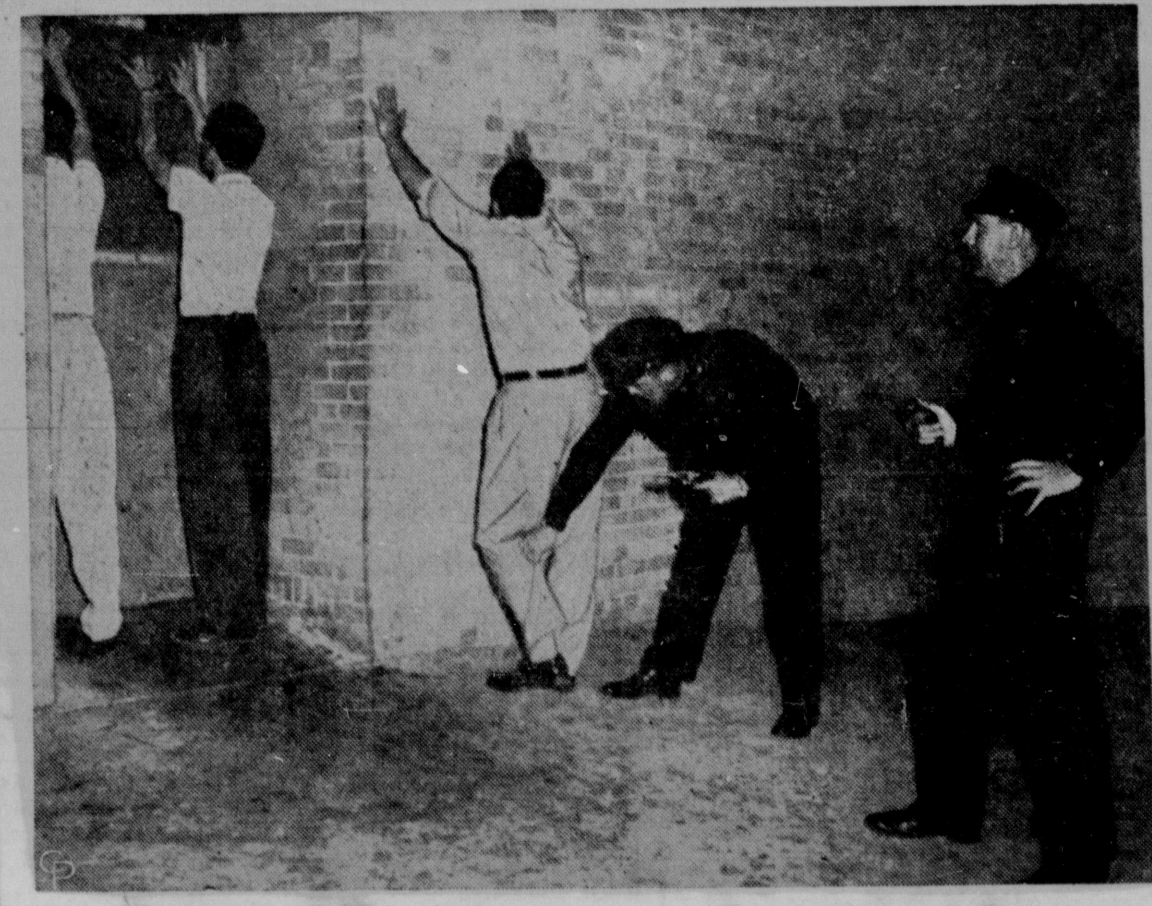

Under terms of their contract, UMW members get a 10-day paid vacation annually. The coal operators handed $100 checks to each miner Friday.

"I really don't see how some of the operators paid," said Busarello. "Much of the coal industry is in bad shape. We've got a lot of coal above ground and have lost a good many markets for coal in the past few years."

Kerosene Blast Kills 4

CONNEAUT, O., June 28 (INS)—Four children, including a nine-month-old baby, perished today when a kerosene explosion sent flames belching through a one-story brick farmhouse on the Pennsylvania-Ohio border, 12 miles east of Conneaut, O.

Authorities identified the dead as Georgia Moyer, 18, her two sisters, Judy, 10, and Bonnie, 2, and Marian Chase, 9 months.

Caught Burglarizing Supermarket
Hands up, three of five youthful burglars caught by police in a supermarket in New York wait to be searched. One of the five was shot dead. Officer John McCrudden holds the gun while Officer Patrick Murray frisks one of the prisoners.

Five Young Men And Women Die In Auto Smashup

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 28 (AP)—Five young men and women from Wisconsin were killed and a sixth was seriously hurt early today when, police said, their speeding car hit a tree five miles north of Waukegan.

State police said an eyewitness estimated the car was going 100 miles an hour as it raced north from Chicago on Route 41. The vehicle was split in half when it hit the tree.

The dead were Donald Crevenow, 23, the driver, of Kenosha; Eugene Saffig, 27, of Kenosha; Patricia Murphy, 23, of Madison; Helen Krapfel, 22, of Madison; and Olga Sorenson, 22, of Kenosha.

The lone survivor was Dennis Gerger, 27, of Kenosha. He was in serious condition at St. Theresa Hospital in Waukegan.

Slim Clues Found In Hunt For Girl

LOS ANGELES, June 28 (INS)—Two slim clues were unearthed today in a foot-by-foot search of the Norwalk area for missing eight-year-old Stella Darlene Nolan, but no trace of the girl herself was turned up.

Seven hundred men and women, sworn in as special deputy sheriffs, combed an area 10 miles long and six miles wide in the hunt for the child who disappeared from a Norwalk auction lot the evening of June 20. Her mother, Mrs. Ilena Nolan, was working at a refreshment stand there at the time of the disappearance.

For several days authorities have been convinced that the girl was kidnapped by a sex maniac and perhaps slain.

One of the clues developed by today's hunt was the finding of a T-shirt of the type worn by the girl. It was found on a bank of the Rio Hondo River.

The other lead was the discovery of a small motorcycle which was stolen from the auction lot the same night Stella disappeared. It was found abandoned in an orange grove in East Whittier.

Bill To Ban Geneva Cyclotron Defeated

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 28 (AP)—A Communist-inspired bill to prevent construction of the world's most powerful cyclotron in Geneva was decisively rejected in a cantonal plebiscite here today.

The Geneva canton voted down a Communist bill by 17,232 to 7,332 in spite of support from influential non-Communist circles who feared the internationally sponsored cyclotron would attract enemy bombardment in case of war.

Turkish Soldiers Took Him Literally

Pvt. Gordon Calano of East Hartford, who has picked up a bit of Turkish, used the Turkish words for "hot" and "dog." The Turks took him literally.

Plan For Emergency Control Of Vital Materials Developed

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—The government is developing a new plan for the control of materials in wartime which, if proved feasible, could harness industry for defense within a month after mobilization is ordered.

Mobilization officials estimate the plan can cut eight to 11 months from the time needed to set up an allocation system like the complex "controlled materials plan," called CMP, which expires at midnight Tuesday.

Of more immediate importance to the industry, it may require little or no peacetime reporting of materials use to the government by civilian manufacturers.

At a conference called by the Office of Defense Mobilization here last month, 25 industry leaders told the government that a costly and difficult reporting system like that of CMP would "break down of its own weight" in peacetime. They urged a search for a simpler control plan.

The proposed solution is under study at ODM, the National Production Authority and the Commerce Department. Still highly tentative, it boils down to this:

The government will amass and sift all statistics available here to find out how many tons of steel, copper and aluminum are used by each industry in producing autos, refrigerators, machinery and other "end items" at given rates of production.

Using these formulas when mobilization day comes, the government would simply curtail each industry's output of end-items, by cutting down its supply of metal sufficiently to release the tonnage needed for weapons.

Allotments to the final users—the factories—would replace the present CMP system of parceling metal at every stage from the mine to the factory door.

The curtailment would be progressive. The aim would be to throttle down civilian manufacturing to match the gradual rise of military output and the conversion of civilian plants to military production.

Thus a needless unemployment would be averted, civilian goods would remain in production until the plants or materials could be used in the expanding munitions program, and reserves of civilian products could be built up to be rationed out when non-military production was halted.

Ike Visits Crippled Children, Buys Sunday Dinner Dessert

THURMONT, Md., June 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower gave nearly 100 crippled children the thrill of their young lives today and bought dessert for their Sunday dinner, too.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower paid a surprise visit to Camp Greenport in the Catoctin Mountains about two miles from their own week-end vacation place, at Camp David.

Greenport is operated by the Baltimore League for Crippled Children, which cares for 94 youngsters—53 girls and 41 boys from 7 to 15 years old.

Responding to an invitation sent to him by some of the children, the President turned up at the camp about 9:30 a.m. The children had not been told Eisenhower and the first lady were coming and they cut loose with squeals of delight as their distinguished guests drove up.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower spent about a half hour at the camp.

"Do you know what the President did this morning?" Mrs. Eisenhower asked one little girl. "He got up and made hotcakes."

And Eisenhower, after making a quiet inquiry about the youngsters' favorite dessert, slipped a couple of $20 bills to one of the camp officials, Business Manager Fred Volland.

"Give them the dessert on me," he said with a grin.

When the Eisenhowers arrived, the children—most of them victims of either polio or cerebral palsy—were engaged in group singing on the lawn.

One youngster greeted the Chief Executive this way:

"Hello, President Eisenhower, I saw you on television."

Eisenhower chuckled and replied:

"You ought to be looking at Gary Cooper on television."

Clark, Briggs, Murphy Join In Seoul Talks

ROK President May Relax Demand For Immediate Alliance

SEOUL, Monday, June 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower's special envoy was joined today by the top U. S. diplomatic and military leaders in his crucial secret session with President Syngman Rhee aimed at easing the Korean armistice crisis.

U. N. Commander Gen. Mark W. Clark, U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs and Ambassador Robert Murphy, Clark's adviser on truce matters, sat in with Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state on Far Eastern affairs.

For Robertson it was the fourth session in as many days since his arrival from Washington with an urgent secret message from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. It was the first meeting attended by Murphy.

Clark was present at one previous conference between Robertson and the aged, intractable Korean leader. Before Robertson came to Korea, however, Clark conferred with Rhee twice after Rhee released anti-Communist North Korean war prisoners, an action that brought the nearly-completed truce negotiations to a crisis.

Optimism Expressed

A South Korean government spokesman said Rhee and the U. S. assistant secretary of state were in agreement on a U. S.-South Korean mutual security pact but neither has made a public statement on conference results.

Both have expressed optimism during the four days since President Eisenhower's special envoy arrived. The talks are aimed at breaking down Rhee's tough opposition to a truce agreement, which was on the verge of signing.

Following their third meeting yesterday Robertson, choosing his words carefully, told newsmen "I have confidence we can reach a mutual agreement and clear up such misunderstandings as may exist between us."

He said "the negotiations are still continuing."

Dr. Karl Hong Kee, director of the Republic of Korea information office, told Korean newsmen Saturday that Rhee and Robertson were so close to agreement on the pact that common ground might be reached at any moment.

Rhee in his defiance of a truce that would leave Chinese Communist troops in Northern Korea said he wanted a defense pact with the U. S. and firm assurance American forces would again help South Korea should it be attacked again.

Rhee Assured By Ike

South Korean sources said Rhee might assume a "compromising" frame of mind once he has in hand a U. S. promise of such a pact.

Eisenhower in a letter June 6 assured the ROK chief executive that he would work for a mutual defense pact with the South Korean government after an armistice is signed.

But Rhee, wanting the pact before the armistice, ordered the release of anti-Red North Korean prisoners of war June 18. This walkout of 27,000 prisoners—breaking a key agreement already signed—dashed hopes of quickly signing a completed truce which has been two years in the making.

There was speculation that Rhee may relax his demand for an immediate pact and accept Eisenhower's assurance that the U. S. administration would work for one which must be approved by the Senate before it can take effect.

Baltimore Pounded By Rain, Heavy Wind

BALTIMORE, June 28 (AP)—A severe thunder and rain squall accompanied by tornado-like winds pounded its way through Baltimore late today causing extensive property damage and stalling motorists in five-foot deep water on the downtown streets.

The Baltimore Weather Bureau, located at Friendship International Airport, several miles to the south, experienced only a mild shower. Observers there said there was no way of measuring the winds in the city, and an official rainfall measurement would not be available until tomorrow.

THURMONT, Md., June 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower gave nearly 100 crippled children the thrill of their young lives today and bought dessert for their Sunday dinner, too.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower paid a surprise visit to Camp Greentop in the Catocin Mountains about two miles from their own week-end vacation place, at Camp David.

Greentop is operated by the Baltimore League for Crippled Children which cares for 94 youngsters—53 girls and 41 boys from 7 to 15 years old.

Responding to an invitation sent to him by some of the children, the President turned up at the camp about 9:30 a.m. The children had not been told Eisenhower and the first lady were coming and they cut loose with squeals of delight as their distinguished guests drove up.

Clark, Briggs, Murphy Join In Seoul Talks

ROK President May Relax Demand For Immediate Alliance

SEOUL, Monday, June 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower's special envoy was joined today by the top U. S. diplomatic and military leaders in his crucial secret session with President Syngman Rhee aimed at easing the Korean armistice crisis.

U. N. Commander Gen. Mark W. Clark, U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs, Ambassador Robert Murphy, Clark's adviser on truce matters, sat in with Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state on Far Eastern affairs.

For Robertson it was the fourth session in as many days since his arrival from Washington with an urgent secret message from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. It was the first meeting attended by Murphy.

Clark was present at one previous conference between Robertson and the aged, intractable Korean leader. Before Robertson came to Korea, however, Clark conferred with Rhee twice after Rhee released anti-Communist North Korean war prisoners, an action that brought the nearly-completed truce negotiations to a crisis.

Optimism Expressed
A South Korean government spokesman said Rhee and the U. S. assistant secretary of state were in agreement on a U. S.-South Korean mutual security pact but neither has made a public statement on conference results.

Both have expressed optimism during the four days since President Eisenhower's special envoy arrived. The talks are aimed at breaking down Rhee's tough opposition to a truce agreement, which was on the verge of signing.

Following their third meeting yesterday Robertson, choosing his words carefully, told newsmen "I have confidence we can reach a mutual agreement and clear up such misunderstandings as may exist between us."

He said "the negotiations are still continuing."

Dr. Karl Hong Kee, director of the Republic of Korea information office, told Korean newsmen Saturday that Rhee and Robertson were so close to agreement on the pact that common ground might be reached at any moment.

Rhee in his defiance of a truce that would leave Chinese Communist troops in Northern Korea said he wanted a defense pact with the U. S. and firm assurance American forces would again help South Korea should it be attacked again.

Rhee Assured By Ike
South Korean sources said Rhee might assume a "compromising" frame of mind once he has in hand a U. S. promise of such a pact.

Eisenhower in a letter June 6 assured the ROK chief executive that he would work for a mutual defense pact with the South Korean government after an armistice is signed.

But Rhee, wanting the pact before the armistice, ordered the release of anti-Red North Korean prisoners of war June 18. This walkout of 27,000 prisoners—breaking a key agreement already signed—dashed hopes of quickly signing a completed truce which has been two years in the making.

There was speculation that Rhee may relax his demand for an immediate pact and accept Eisenhower's assurance that the U. S. administration would work for one which must be approved by the Senate before it can take effect.

Today's Chuckle

Unsteadily he stood there before the mirror. Mournfully he surveyed his bloodshot eyes. "That settles it," he muttered. "I've gotta stay out of those bars. My eyes are being ruined by that television."

Baltimore Pounded By Rain, Heavy Wind

BALTIMORE, June 28 (AP)—A severe thunder and rain squall accompanied by tornado-like winds pounded its way through Baltimore late today causing extensive property damage and stalling motorists in five-foot deep water on the downtown streets.

The Baltimore Weather Bureau, located at Friendship International Airport, several miles to the south, experienced only a mild shower. Observers there said there was no way of measuring the winds in the city, and an official rainfall measurement would not be available until tomorrow.

Petersburg Bus Service Will Stop July 7

The Public Service Commission of West Virginia has granted the Reynolds Bus Company permission to discontinue its Cumberland to Petersburg bus service.

The order of the PSC received here states the action becomes effective on Tuesday, July 7.

This will leave the entire South Branch Valley without public transportation. The last day of operation will be Monday, July 6.

The Clarksburg bus company in several applications to the PSC to abandon its Cumberland operations in that section listed the declining loss of revenue as the main reason.

Recently, the Public Service Commission granted the firm permission to abandon its haul from Petersburg to Franklin.

The previous moves of the bus firm to stop its service to this section were contested by residents of Romney, Moorefield, Petersburg and Franklin, the towns affected.

In the past several months, when the loss of the transportation seemed imminent, several groups in the valley have talked about starting a bus company with local capital.

The Petersburg Kiwanis Club, which spearheaded the opposition met Friday night and heard reports that $3,000 was lost on the Cumberland-to-Petersburg run last year.

Officials of the Kiwanis Club were told that a private individual, operating large cars capable of hauling ten or 12 persons, could make a profit on the service.

Guy M. Davis, owner of the Cumberland Transit Line, appeared before the commission several months ago and informed the group he would be interested in taking over the Cumberland to Romney run in the event that Reynolds was given permission to abandon its service.

One of the drawbacks of the Reynolds operations to Petersburg is that from Romney to Junction, no passengers can be picked up on Route 50 as the franchise is held by Greyhound.

During the years since World War II the number of privately-owned autos has increased tremendously and, nationally, public transportation companies have lost money.

This has resulted in many runs being dropped for economy moves and has also caused public service commissions to grant rate increases.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Find Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H. The price is only 98¢ a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember—if not entirely satisfied—your money will be refunded promptly. Adv. "Trade Mark."

Petersburg Bus Service Will Stop July 7

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Find Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery. In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing. All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H. The price is only 98¢ a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember—if not entirely satisfied—your money will be refunded promptly. Adv. "Trade Mark."

The City Of Memories

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — We were an hour late getting in here from bucking a hundred-mile-an-hour head wind all the way from Denver. As we drove into the city, it looked about the same as the last time I saw it—always a colorful town. Then memories and anecdotes began to stir around in my mind.

John Wheeler

Many famous characters had grown up in San Francisco. Bud Fisher first drew Mutt and Jeff for the Chronicle. He always hated to expose himself to sunburn, so he worked and played at night. I recall one story he told me about Jim Coffroth, who was a big promoter, mostly of prize fights. The two had been out for the evening, enjoying the sights, and before they knew it daylight was staring them in the face. On the way home, they passed bright-eyed, pink-cheeked boys and girls, and men and women hustling along to school or their jobs.

"We ought to be ashamed of ourselves," remarked Mr. Coffroth ruefully. "Look at these eager people full of life early in the morning. Here we are just getting ready for bed."

"I don't agree," objected Mr. Fisher. "They are going to work, and we're going to sleep. You can't beat that."

Then I remembered about the earthquake, which is still known locally as "the fire," although there seems to have been an awful shake before it started. Young John Barrymore was playing in a show here, and had just gone to bed about four in the morning when the upheaval tossed him off his couch into the dry bathtub which was close by. The actor crawled out, dressed hurriedly, and rushed downtown where the soldiers from the Presidio had taken over by this time. A sergeant jabbed the point of a bayonet into the seat of his pants, handed him a shovel and told him to start digging. When he later reported his experiences to his uncle, John Drew, he said, "It takes a convulsion of nature to get Jack into the bathtub, and the United States Army to put him to work."

Old Bob Edgren, the famous sporting cartoonist and a fight expert, grew up here. He was always full of stories of the town and the old-timers. We went to many championship battles together, but the most dramatic was the one between Dempsey and Firpo in New York. He had a system of keeping track of knockdowns by making a straight line for each on a piece of copy paper without taking his eyes off the action in the ring. On this exciting evening, Firpo floored the champion first and then tilted him out of the ring practically into our laps with a swinging right-hand punch. Of course, I was trying to push him back out of sympathy and patriotism, and partially because of the fact I had $200 bet on him.

He made it all right, and next began knocking the South American down. After the round ended, Edgren glanced at his score sheet, and the marks looked as if a hen had walked across it, they were so shaky. Nobody seemed to be quite sure immediately what the exact total was, both fighters had hit the deck so often.

The first night in town I invited Larry Fanning, managing editor of the Chronicle, for dinner. "Do you mind if I bring along Dick Kilroy who used to be editor of the Standard in Butte?" he asked.

"Invite anyone you like," I replied, being on an expense account.

This turned out to be a pretty glamorous reunion, for Mr. Kilroy was an old friend and customer. As a young fellow, I went to Butte for the first time, and he told me to come around to see him at midnight after he had put the paper to bed. We adjourned the meeting at his suggestion to a saloon next door, even though it was during prohibition. By two in the morning, I had his John Hancock on a contract for all the features in my bag. Meanwhile, my wife back at the hotel thought I had had my throat cut when I didn't turn up until three.

"Did you regret the deal?" I asked him the other night.

"One of the best I ever made," he answered with a grin, "and you were one of the biggest young buccaners ever to come to our town."

When I was getting ready to take off for Los Angeles, I felt genuinely sorry to leave this colorful and warm city again.

RR Employees Given Trips To Seashore

The second of two groups of West Virginia Northern R. R. employees and their wives, given all-expense-paid trips to Atlantic City, returned to Kingwood, W. Va., yesterday.

William L. Sherman, city vice president of the railroad company, which operates between Kingwood and Tunnelton in Preston County, was in charge of arrangements.

The 44 employees made the trip in two groups. One leaving last Sunday and returning Wednesday, and the second group going Thursday with return scheduled yesterday.

J. D. Everly, Kingwood, superintendent, accompanied both groups.

In addition to its vacation phase, the trips to Atlantic City enabled the employees to attend the convention and display of equipment by the American Railway Suppliers.

A manatee is an American sea cow, now nearly extinct. Manatees are large seal-like animals, sometimes 10 feet long and weighing more than a ton.

Resident Jailed In Hagerstown

A local resident was one of two men sentenced Saturday to 35 days in the Washington County Jail after a Hagerstown household complained they had invaded her home.

The local man was identified as Julius Morton, 46, who is listed in the City Directory as a Kelly-Springfield employee and a resident of 406 Beall Street. The other man was identified as Lawrence Tomlin, 45. No address was given for Tomlin.

"Hi, baby, how about something to eat?" Mrs. Betty Hays quoted the two men as saying.

On the pretext that she would need some help getting together a meal, Mrs. Hays went to a neighbor's home and called police.

Brought up on a disorderly conduct charge, Morton and Tomlin said they were drunk and didn't know what they were doing.

Magistrate William Kreyenbohm said that constituted no excuse as far as he was concerned.

Vacation School

Holds Commencement

Commencement exercises for the Daily Vacation Bible School of Pleasant Grove Methodist Church were conducted last night. Melvin Robinette, superintendent, was in charge of the program, which included the presentation of certificates and a display of the handwork of the various classes.

Mrs. Harry Wilson was pianist for the course.

A local resident was one of two men sentenced Saturday to 35 days in the Washington County Jail after a Hagerstown householder complained they had invaded her home.

The local man was identified as Julius Morton, 46, who is listed in the City Directory as a Kelly-Springfield employee and a resident of 406 Beall Street. The other man was identified as Lawrence Tomlin, 45. No address was given for Tomlin.

"Hi, baby, how about something to eat?" Mrs. Betty Hays quoted the two men as saying.

On the pretext that she would need some help getting together a meal, Mrs. Hays went to a neighbor's home and called police.

Brought up on a disorderly conduct charge, Morton and Tomlin said they were drunk and didn't know what they were doing.

Magistrate William Kreyenbohm said that constituted no excuse as far as he was concerned.

Butter-Margarine War

The U. S. Senate will shortly be asked to decide whether the Navy ration statute shall be amended to permit the serving of oleomargarine. The Army and Air Force already serve the butter substitute; a bill favorably reported June 18 by the Senate Armed Services Committee would allow the Navy to do the same.

Just as the Navy bill comes up, the producers of oleomargarine are protesting a Department of Agriculture arrangement to sell some 50 million pounds of butter to the Army at about 15 cents a pound—as against a market price in the neighborhood of 67 cents a pound. And another battle in the great butter-margarine war is looming over a new product recently put on sale in some cities. It is a blend of butter and margarine which sells for about 49 cents a pound.

The National Milk Producers Federation has complained to the Food and Drug Administration about the new product, which contains less than 50 per cent butter, and to the Federal Trade Commission about the product's advertising. Sample advertisements use big type to say the product contains butter, small type to say it contains vegetable oils.

As of April 30, the Commodity Credit Corporation had on hand or had contracted to buy more than 149 million pounds of surplus butter. Also on hand were more than 634 million pounds of surplus cottonseed oil, 189.6 million pounds of linseed oil, 328 thousand gallons of olive oil—and CCC had contracted to buy 117 million pounds of crude cottonseed oil and more than 186 millions pounds of refined cottonseed oil. The government's holdings of cottonseed oil alone were enough to make more than a year's supply of margarine. And the carryover of edible vegetable oils next October 1 is expected to set a record.

Consumption of butter this year, according to the Agriculture Department, probably will decline to a new record low of just over eight pounds per person. In the years from 1935 to 1939 Americans ate some 16.7 pounds of butter a year each. On the other hand, per capita consumption of margarine has climbed to 7.7 pounds, from only 2.9 pounds a year in the 1935-39 period.

President Eisenhower confessed, at a news conference June 17, that he had not yet found the answer to the government's butter surplus, but he didn't think it was to sell the butter at 10 cents a pound. He had been asked about a plan attributed to Agriculture officials to sell a second pound of government-owned butter at 10 cents to anyone who bought a pound of commercial butter at the market price.

The federal tax of 10 cents a pound on colored margarine was lifted by Congress in 1950. Only five states—Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Vermont, Wisconsin—continue to forbid the sale and serving of colored margarine. But it is subject to heavy taxes in three states—Idaho, North Dakota, Utah—that have lifted earlier bans.

Restaurants serving colored margarine are required by federal law to post notices to that effect and to identify it by a label or a triangular shape. The maximum penalty for non-compliance is $5,000 fine for each day of violation. However, Congress has appropriated very limited funds for enforcement and only one conviction has so far been obtained. The fine for the violator was $10.

Senate Lock-Smiths

Is milady's hair in the national or public interest? The hair-splitting question of giving federal loans to beauty parlor operators was brushed out with a fine-tooth comb in recent Senate debate considering types of businesses to be eligible for government aid.

Senator Capahart of Indiana, sponsor of legislation to establish a Small Business Administration, thinks that money should be advanced to small businessmen even if not directly in the national interest. But Senator Monroney of Oklahoma deplores such a course as being against the public interest.

Thereby hangs the horsetail. Is a permanent so important that Uncle Sam should shell out taxpayer loot to curl the straight of it? Or would the country be better off with dames running around with their hair streaming frowly before their eyes? The good senator from Indiana admits that a gal with a striking hairdo may not necessarily shoot down a Soviet bomber. But he leaves the inference that it may not have an adverse effect on the boys who may ultimately have to.

Not to be thought a cad, Senator Monroney wants it perfectly understood that he has nothing against hairdressers. It's just that the Treasury does not have enough lucre to go all the way around. It's comforting to hear Mr. Monroney shed a tear for the Treasury for a change. If he continues to get in the ladies' hair, however, he may wind up wearing a shirt of the stuff after the next time he stands for re-election.

Chink In Curtain

Through the accident of geography the free world has had a ringside seat on the East Berlin rioting. The fact that West Berlin borders on the scene of the workers' demonstrations gave anti-Communist peoples a full press on the heroic uprising.

This has inevitably led to speculation whether this revolt is only one of many in recent days behind the Iron curtain, with the others sealed off to Western eyes. The riots are reported to be spreading across East Germany. As soon as they get out of earshot of West Berlin presumably nothing more will be heard of them.

But an important Western hypothesis has been verified. Subject peoples, groveling many months in the muck of tyranny, are rising. They will in all probability be kicked back into supine submission, but it is now obvious the Reds cannot control them except by force.

This puts a completely new complexion on the face of latest cold war moves between East and West. It would seem to confirm that the Kremlin is making its phony peace play as a result of necessity. If the Allies do not capitalize on the knowledge it will not be because the East Berlin rioters didn't try to tip them off.

Editorialgraphs

In some respects man shows little advancement. Vacation postcards still carry the old message, "Wish you were here," when the sender wishes no such thing.

There is considerable speculation as to the size of this year's wheat crop. And much discussion of the problem of what to do with it regardless of its size.

Arms And Legs That "Fall Asleep"

Numbness and tingling are so common as to be almost universal. We have all experienced these odd sensations in the lower extremities after sitting with the legs crossed for 20 minutes or more and in the fingers by dangling an arm over the back of a chair. The abnormality is not unusual at night as a result of sleeping on an arm or twisting the body into a grotesque position and any one who has been frostbitten is familiar with this pins and needles sensation.

When the condition is more severe than usual and there is no obvious explanation, a disturbance of the nervous system is suspected. As a rule, there is pressure upon a nerve but other types are associated with anemia, poor circulation, or neuritis.

Tingling in the arms may result from a dozen different disorders in the neck alone. This is a crowded area packed with nerves, blood vessels, muscles, and glands and thru it runs the backbone and windpipe. The slightest swelling may lead to pressure upon the brachial plexus or any of the other nerve fibers that lead to the arms and hands. The most common offending agents in the neck are the vertebrae and muscles. Arthritis of the spine often causes pressure upon the nerves as they leave the spinal cord, especially when the head is turned to the left or right, or the neck is flexed as in reading or writing. Slipped (ruptured) disk will do the same; this disorder usually follows injury and, more often than not, produces pain as well as the pins and needles sensation.

Numbness and tingling also are associated with a host of neurological disturbances. In multiple sclerosis, these manifestations may be the only early signs which last for a year or two and then recur to repeat the cycle. Nerve injuries also are responsible. In a recent letter one of our readers told of having cut his wrist several months previously and his thumb still tingled and felt numb. This man did not realize that the nerve leading to the thumb had been severed and unless the loose ends could be found and connected numbness was likely to remain.

Victims of nervous exhaustion, neuritis, and hysteria frequently complain of numbness in some part of the body. Its location is bizarre and seldom follows the distribution of the nerve leading to the affected region as in true nerve involvement. This type of numbness may not represent a complete loss of sensation (anesthesia); the prick of a needle may be felt but not heat and cold or tickling with a wisp of cotton. At any rate, most physicians are able to tell whether the sensation is a bona fide nerve lesion or "nervousness."

Anemia and poor circulation are particularly prone to lead to tingling in oldsters. The same can be said of circulatory disturbances in women which produce Raynaud's syndrome and acroparesthesia. In England, the latter terms is synonymous with the prickling, burning, tingling sensations that develop in the extremities of women who are going thru the menopause. The hands are involved more frequently than the feet. There are no visible signs, no poor circulation, no paralysis, no loss of sensation. The discomfort is most noticeable on awakening and tends to disappear after moving about.

F. T. writes: I can't walk any distance before my breathing bothers me and I start gasping for breath. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY
You are in a predicament. Why not have your heart and lungs checked and blood count taken to determine the cause of your shortness of breath?

GOITER
Mrs. L. writes: Is there more than one type of goiter?

REPLY
Yes. We speak of the simple, the nodular, and the exophthalmic goiter. We have a leaflet describing these disorders which you may obtain by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

PREVENT SEASICKNESS
V. A. writes: A woman of 70 is going to Europe by ship. Would it be safe for her to take a seasickness remedy?

REPLY
Yes. Furthermore, it is a good policy for persons in their 70s to avoid the strain of nausea and vomiting.

SIDE PAIN

Mrs. S. writes: My young son develops pain on his left side when he runs. Is this an indication of heart disease?

REPLY
No. No one knows the cause, although there are many theories. Pain appears in the region of the spleen on the left side of the diaphragm. To my knowledge the heart never has been implicated. Those with heart disease also develop pain on exertion but it is located higher in the chest, usually under the breastbone.

Strip Tease Act At Naval Base Jolts Admirals; Scapegoat Junior Officer Held In Brig 40 Days Without Charges

WASHINGTON — Red-faced admirals are trying to shush up a spicy scandal at the Key West naval base involving some lewd movies and a strip tease dancer who wrestled with enlisted men at a Navy "smoker."

Aftermath of the unusual Navy entertainment has been the transfer of base commander Adm. Irvin T. Duke to Charleston, S. C., the jailing of Lt. Comdr. Jerry McDaniel, while the chaplain who protested the strip tease act and lewd movies, Lt. Comdr. Greer Imbrie, is being transferred to inactive duty.

Chaplain Imbrie had first protested the lewd movies to the naval air commander, Capt. A. E. Buckley. When this did not stop a second show he wrote direct to Washington. His reward will be retirement—on July 31—though the Navy will not admit the two have any connection. Capt. Buckley's "reward" was heart trouble. He was immediately confined to his bed with a heart attack and remained inaccessible to certain visitors.

Real scandal in the end may be the way the Navy railroaded Commander McDaniel as the scapegoat.

McDaniel is not an Annapolis man. Other top brass are. He was held 40 days virtually uncommunicated in the Navy brig without a charge being filed against him, which is contrary to the Bill of Rights. While he was held, Navy brass scratched their heads as to what charges they should file against him.

Vitamins, Not Dope
After all, it would be highly embarrassing to charge him with arranging a strip tease show under Navy auspices. So Navy investigators raided his desk, pounced on a bottle and tried to show that McDaniel was taking dope. It was also suggested he was acting as if he might commit suicide.

But the plot was exploded when a Navy doctor, Lt. William E. Perednia, admitted that superior officers had come to him with the, dope charge and the suicide suggestion.

Some complained afterward that the movies were not spicy enough, so a second "smoker" was scheduled, again for charity. But Chaplain Imbrie had heard that the movies were risqué. He called on Capt. Buckley and registered his objections.

Buckley gave the chaplain a brush-off, but took the precaution to issue oral orders that the Navy should have nothing to do with the second "smoker."

Civilian employees were left free to do whatever they wished, however, and Howard McDonald, a civilian clerk, went ahead with the arrangements where McDaniel had left off. McDonald by-passed the American Legion, obtained juicier films, and after the movies, Sheila, the strip tease lady, mysteriously appeared and began shedding her clothes. Finally, she called to the crowd: "Want to wrestle!" Three obliging sailors then assisted in her act.

Eyebrows lifted
Following this second smoker, Chaplain Imbrie appealed to the Navy's head chaplain for advice, and wrote a full report to Washington.

This raised eyebrows right up to the secretary of the Navy. On March 6, McDaniel was thrown in the brig, and McDonald, the civilian clerk, was suspended. A week later, Capt. Buckley was rushed to the hospital with a heart attack. It wasn't long afterwards that Admiral Duke was promoted to be commander of the Sixth Naval District and was transferred to Charleston, S. C.

McDaniel, in his guarded cell, was allowed to see no visitors except his wife, without a Navy chaperone present. He was denied all mailing privileges, which prevented him from writing letters of protest. Formal charges were not filed against him until April 16—40 days later.

Meanwhile, Capt. Buckley was questioned in his sickbed by the Navy investigators, but the day afterward, he was pronounced "too sick" to be questioned by McDaniel's attorney. His court-martial will take place in July.

NOTE — Admiral Duke and Capt. Buckley are Annapolis graduates. The enlisted ranks to lieutenant commander. His fitness reports consistently rated him among the top 10 per cent of Navy officers, but he doesn't belong to the so-called "Annapolis-Protective Association."

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

General Bor's Ghost

WASHINGTON
Behind the scenes, one of the President's major campaign promises is getting its acid test. If the policy of "liberating" the Soviet Union's European satellites means anything at all, this is the moment to try it. The highest policy makers in the administration are currently engaged in a hot debate about "liberation's" meaning or lack of meaning.

The near-uprising in Eastern Germany is the immediate cause of the debate. Liberating East Germany is plainly not a practical proposition, as long as Gen. Drobva has 200 tanks to deploy, on a couple of hours notice, to quell a single riot in Berlin.

Yet the pattern of the East German disorders has made a very deep impression on the White House, on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, on the intelligence services, and on other policy makers. What began with a phony demonstration in Berlin became an immensely dangerous general conflagration, involving most of the important East German industrial centers.

Furthermore, neither the East German people's police nor the Bereitschaften (the East German satellite army) were trusted to put out the fire. Soviet forces were used for this purpose in all cases. The spread of the disorders, the courage and depth of feeling displayed by the rioters, the total distrust of their own puppets displayed by the Soviets, all betokened a profound and organic weakness. This weakness is held to be general, throughout the whole European satellite area.

Czechoslovakia A Danger Point

In particular — and here is where the test comes — Czechoslovakia is now considered to be a genuine danger point for the Kremlin. Riots at Pilsen, on the same pattern as those in Berlin, actually preceded the disorders in East Germany. Since the sudden death of President Gottwald, the Czech puppet government has been in a state of obvious confusion, with authority ill-defined and all the control machinery creaking under the strain.

As in Germany, so in Czechoslovakia, these are the "hunger months," just before the harvest. Even for favored industrial workers food is very short. The Czech currency reform has in effect condemned the whole very large Czech middle class to slow starvation. In short, all the materials are present for a major explosion.

Most important of all, there are no Soviet occupation forces in Czechoslovakia to stop an explosion if it should begin. Alone among the satellites, Czechoslovakia does not have the Red army on its back. Finally, the means are quite probably available to the West, to touch off a Czech explosion if this is considered desirable. An active underground is known to exist. The country has many listeners to the various radios, overt and clandestine, that are beamed to the satellite area. The right kind of encouragement by simple radio propaganda might well cause a full-scale explosion to occur overnight.

There is one grave difficulty, however, Gottwald's cringing successor, Antonin Zapotocky, would almost certainly "invite" the Red army to return to Czechoslovakia, and to "defend the people's democracy" against Western provocateurs. It is almost certain that the Red army would accept the invitation. There would then ensue a terrible slaughter, like the slaughter of the brave Poles in Warsaw when Gen. Bor-Komorowski led his premature uprising against the Nazis.

Policy Makers Divided
The ghost of Gen. Bor has a power, nowadays, that this heroic and unfortunate man never achieved in life. Single-handed his ghost has divided the American policy makers into two factions.

The liberals, who are said to include Secretary of State Dulles and the President's expert on psychological warfare, C. D. Jackson, would take the considerable risk of giving full encouragement to the present satellite unrest. According to report, the liberals argue that the satellite resistance movements must take their chance, and that forcing the Red army to move, into Czechoslovakia for instance, will amount to a major victory in the cold war in any case.

Those who remember Gen. Bor make the obvious reply, that it is both short-sighted and cold-blooded to give encouragement to the satellite resistance groups, unless we are prepared to come to their rescue. But being prepared to come to their rescue of course means being prepared to risk a war.

Whatever its outcome, this debate among the policy makers indicates a melancholy fact. Stalin's death and its sequel have offered the West the kind of opportunity that will not come again. The President, the secretary of State, and every other policy maker in our government is aware that if and when the new masters of the Kremlin bring their empire back under full control, the danger to the West will continuously increase. They have the papers before them, showing the increase of the Soviet's atomic stockpile, the curve of Soviet armament build-up, and so on.

As yet, only feebleness and indecision have been shown in the face of the present opportunity and the future danger.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Still Formosa

No far Eastern solution can omit Formosa. There stands a government which is recognized by the United States and holds a seat in the United Nations, as representing the Chinese people. The fact is that this government was defeated on the mainland by a revolutionary body supported in its rebellion by Soviet Russia, also a member of the United Nations.

The British and a large number of other countries have recognized the Chinese Communists as the government of China. They propose that the Nationalists be deprived of their seat in the United Nations and that the Chinese Communists be given that seat. That is one issue that is to be raised at the Bermuda conference between Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Eisenhower.

Lord Henderson, in a full dress speech in the House of Lords, stated the British position fully:

"Her Majesty's Government recognizes the Peking government, and there can surely be no doubt that, following a Korean peace, it is the government's intention to support the admission of Peking representatives to the United Nations."

"The second problem, the problem of Formosa, is more complex and presents special difficulties. The Peking government claims it. The Chinese Nationalists occupy it. I have also seen the suggestion that Formosa should enjoy a period of trusteeship under the United Nations."

What, in fact, will be the future status of Formosa is a matter which will be settled in negotiations for a Far Eastern peace, but if peace throughout Asia is to be (to use President Eisenhower's words) "true and total," one clear decision seems to be called for—that is that Formosa cannot be allowed to continue to be used as a Chinese Nationalist base from which to carry on civil war and to build up and launch armed attacks on the Chinese mainland.

This is a very curious statement. The Formosan government was up to 1948 the universally recognized government of China, allied to Great Britain as well as to the United States. It had been the second most important participant in the Far Eastern phase of World War II. The Chinese Communists were the insurgents who conducted

Elliot's home here the other night, Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain's diplomat who talks circles round the Russians at the UN, praised Ike's book-burning speech, "even though illiterate," but couldn't understand why he reversed himself on book-burning two days later.

a civil war against the duly constituted government of China. True, under plans for a truce between the Nationalists and the Communists arranged by General George Marshall, the rebels were victorious on the mainland, but they did not succeed in destroying the Nationalists, who took refuge on Formosa and have maintained a government there.

How can Lord Henderson say that the duly constituted government, with a seat in the United Nations, is conducting a civil war against the rebels? Nothing in international law explains such a paradox. Nothing under the United Nations charter creates such a condition. Lord Henderson was undoubtedly stating the formal policy of the British government, which recognized the Chinese Communists in pursuit of trade. But these views have never publicly been proclaimed as the policy of either the Truman or the Eisenhower administration.

As regards a United Nations trusteeship for Formosa, it was first mentioned by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in April at an off-the-record conversation with selected newsmen. Dulles subsequently denied that such was the United States plan. The White House also disclaimed it.

This plan will never be accepted by Chiang Kai-shek any more than Syngman Rhee has accepted the occupation of his country by Chinese Communists and Indian troops. From my long experience with Asiatic peoples, I can only see massacres, assassinations and terror in the future. The Koreans will no more submit to the presence of Hindus in their country than they submitted to the Japanese and to Chinese Communists. They even opposed a Formosan participating army.

The Americans were not resisted because the Koreans knew, as all Asiatics do, that Americans always go home. They are not empire-builders and they have no desire to occupy the lands of other peoples.

That has never been the history of the Chinese or the Hindus, who have in their history occupied areas imperially. China held Korea in suzerainty for 300 years; Japan annexed Korea. Similarly, the Chinese Nationalists, while they can work with the United States, cannot risk a United Nations trusteeship which can only be a forerunner to handing the island over to the Chinese Communists.

Our allies have more trouble with our varying policies than the countries that engaged us in war.

Butter-Margarine War

The U. S. Senate will shortly be asked to decide whether the Navy ration statute shall be amended to permit the serving of oleomargarine. The Army and Air Force already serve the butter substitute; a bill favorably reported June 18 by the Senate Armed Services Committee would allow the Navy to do the same.

Just as the Navy bill comes up, the producers of oleomargarine are protesting a Department of Agriculture arrangement to sell some 50 million pounds of butter to the Army at about 15 cents a pound—as against a market price in the neighborhood of 67 cents a pound. And another battle in the great butter-margarine war is looming over a new product recently put on sale in some cities. It is a blend of butter and margarine which sells for about 49 cents a pound.

The National Milk Producers Federation has complained to the Food and Drug Administration about the new product, which contains less than 50 per cent butter, and to the Federal Trade Commission about the product's advertising. Sample advertisements use big type to say the product contains butter, small type to say it contains vegetable oils.

As of April 30, the Commodity Credit Corporation had on hand or had contracted to buy more than 149 million pounds of surplus butter. Also on hand were more than 634 million pounds of surplus cottonseed oil, 189.6 million pounds of linseed oil, 328 thousand gallons of olive oil—and CCC had contracted to buy 117 million pounds of crude cottonseed oil and more than 186 million pounds of refined cottonseed oil. The government's holdings of cottonseed oil alone were enough to make more than a year's supply of margarine. And the carryover of edible vegetable oils next October 1 is expected to set a record.

Consumption of butter this year, according to the Agriculture Department, probably will decline to a new record low of just over eight pounds per person. In the years from 1935 to 1939 Americans ate some 16.7 pounds of butter a year each. On the other hand, per capita consumption of margarine has climbed to 7.7 pounds, from only 2.9 pounds a year in the 1935-39 period.

President Eisenhower confessed, at a news conference June 17, that he had not yet found the answer to the government's butter surplus, but he didn't think it was to sell the butter at 10 cents a pound. He had been asked about a plan attributed to Agriculture officials to sell a second pound of government-owned butter at 10 cents to anyone who bought a pound of commercial butter at the market price.

The federal tax of 10 cents a pound on colored margarine was lifted by Congress in 1950. Only five states—Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Vermont, Wisconsin—continue to forbid the sale and serving of colored margarine. But it is subject to heavy taxes in three states—Idaho, North Dakota, Utah—that have lifted earlier bans.

Restaurants serving colored margarine are required by federal law to post notices to that effect and to identify it by a label or a triangular shape. The maximum penalty for non-compliance is $5,000 fine for each day of violation. However, Congress has appropriated very limited funds for enforcement and only one conviction has so far been obtained. The fine for the violator was $10.

Senate Lock-Smiths

Is milady's hair in the national or public interest? The hair-splitting question of giving federal loans to beauty parlor operators was brushed out with a fine-tooth comb in recent Senate debate considering types of businesses to be eligible for government aid.

Senator Capeworth of Indiana, sponsor of legislation to establish a Small Business Administration, thinks that money should be advanced to small businessmen even if not directly in the national interest. But Senator Monroney of Oklahoma deprecates such a course as being against the public interest.

Thereby hangs the horsetail. Is a permanent so important that Uncle Sam should shell out taxpayer loot to curl the straight of it? Or would the country be better off with dames running around with their hair streaming frizzily before their eyes? The good senator from Indiana admits that a gal with a striking hairdo may not necessarily shoot down a Soviet bomber. But he leaves the inference that it may not have an adverse effect on the boys who may ultimately have to.

Not to be thought a cad, Senator Monroney wants it perfectly understood that he has nothing against hairdressers. It's just that the Treasury does not have enough leuc to go all the way around. It's comforting to hear Mr. Monroney shed a tear for the Treasury for a change. If he continues to get in the ladies' hair, however, he may wind up wearing a shirt of the stuff after the next time he stands for re-election.

Chink In Curtain

Through the accident of geography the free world has had a ringside seat on the East Berlin rioting. The fact that West Berlin borders on the scene of the workers' demonstrations gave anti-Communist peoples a full press on the heroic uprising.

This has inevitably led to speculation whether this revolt is only one of many in recent days behind the Iron curtain, with the others sealed off to Western eyes. The riots are reported to be spreading across East Germany. As soon as they get out of earshot of West Berlin presumably nothing more will be heard of them.

But an important Western hypothesis has been verified. Subject peoples, groveling many months in the muck of tyranny, are rising. They will in all probability be kicked back into supine submission, but it is now obvious the Reds cannot control them except by force.

This puts a completely new complexion on the face of latest cold war moves between East and West. It would seem to confirm that the Kremlin is making its phony peace play as a result of necessity. If the Allies do not capitalize on the knowledge it will not be because the East Berlin rioters didn't try to tip them off.

Editorialgraphs

In some respects man shows little advancement. Vacation postcards still carry the old message, "Wish you were here," when the sender wishes no such thing.

There is considerable speculation as to the size of this year's wheat crop. And much discussion of the problem of what to do with it regardless of its size.

Arms And Legs That "Fall Asleep"

Numbness and tingling are so common as to be almost universal. We have all experienced these odd sensations in the lower extremities after sitting with the legs crossed for 20 minutes or more and in the fingers by dangling an arm over the back of a chair. The abnormality is not unusual at night as a result of sleeping on an arm or twisting the body into a grotesque position and any one who has been frostbitten is familiar with this pins and needles sensation.

When the condition is more severe than usual and there is no obvious explanation, a disturbance of the nervous system is suspected. As a rule, there is pressure upon a nerve but other types are associated with anemia, poor circulation, or neuritis.

Tingling in the arms may result from a dozen different disorders in the neck alone. This is a crowded area packed with nerves, blood vessels, muscles, and glands and thru it runs the backbone and windpipe. The slightest swelling may lead to pressure upon the brachial plexus or any of the other nerve fibers that lead to the arms and hands. The most common offending agents in the neck are the vertebrae and muscles. Arthritis of the spine often causes pressure upon the nerves as they leave the spinal cord, especially when the head is turned to the left or right, or the neck is flexed as in reading or writing. Slipped (ruptured) disk will do the same; this disorder usually follows injury and, more often than not, produces pain as well as the pins and needles sensation.

Numbness and tingling also are associated with a host of neurological disturbances. In multiple sclerosis, these manifestations may be the only early signs which last for a year or two and then recur to repeat the cycle. Nerve injuries also are responsible. In a recent letter one of our readers told of having cut his wrist several months previously and his thumb still tingled and felt numb. This man did not realize that the nerve leading to the thumb had been severed and unless the loose ends could be found and connected numbness was likely to remain.

Victims of nervous exhaustion, neuritis, and hysteria frequently complain of numbness in some part of the body. Its location is bizarre and seldom follows the distribution of the nerve leading to the affected region as in true nerve involvement. This type of numbness may not represent a complete loss of sensation (anesthesia); the prick of a needle may be felt but not heat and cold or tickling with a wisp of cotton. At any rate, most physicians are able to tell whether the sensation is a bona fide nerve lesion or "nervousness."

Anemia and poor circulation are particularly prone to lead to tingling in oldsters. The same can be said of circulatory disturbances in women which produce Raynaud's syndrome and acroparesthesia. In England, the latter terms is synonymous with the prickling, burning, tingling sensations that develop in the extremities of women who are going thru the menopause. The hands are involved more frequently than the feet. There are no visible signs, no poor circulation, no paralysis, no loss of sensation. The discomfort is most noticeable on awakening and tends to disappear after moving about.

F. T. writes: I can't walk any distance before my breathing bothers me and I start gasping for breath. Have you any suggestions?
REPLY

You are in a predicament. Why not have your heart and lungs checked and blood count taken to determine the cause of your shortness of breath?

GOITER
Mrs. L. writes: Is there more than one type of goiter?
REPLY

Yes. We speak of the simple, the nodular, and the exophthalmic goiter. We have a leaflet describing these disorders which you may obtain by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

PREVENT SEASICKNESS
V. A. writes: A woman of 70 is going to Europe by ship. Would it be safe for her to take a seasickness remedy?
REPLY

Yes. Furthermore, it is a good policy for persons in their 70s to avoid the strain of nausea and vomiting.

SIDE PAIN
Mrs. S. writes: My young son develops pain on his left side when he runs. Is this an indication of heart disease?
REPLY

No. No one knows the cause, although there are many theories. Pain appears in the region of the spleen on the left side of the diaphragm. To my knowledge the heart never has been implicated. Those with heart disease also develop pain on exertion but it is located higher in the chest, usually under the breastbone.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Strip Tease Act At Naval Base Jolts Admirals; Scapegoat Junior Officer Held In Brig 40 Days Without Charges

WASHINGTON — Red-faced admirals are trying to shush up a spicy scandal at the Key West naval base involving some lewd movies and a strip tease dancer who wrestled with enlisted men at a Navy "smoker."

Aftermath of the unusual Navy entertainment has been the transfer of base commander Adm. Irvin T. Duke to Charleston, S. C., the jailing of Lt. Comdr. Jerry McDaniel, while the chaplain who protested the strip tease act and lewd movies, Lt. Comdr. Groer Imbrie, is being transferred to inactive duty.

Chaplain Imbrie had first protested the lewd movies to the naval air commandant, Capt. A. E. Buckley. When this did not stop a second show he wrote direct to Washington. His reward will be retirement—on July 31—though the Navy will not admit the two have any connection. Capt. Buckley's "reward" was heart trouble. He was immediately confined to his bed with a heart attack and released.

1953 Crop Outlook

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Although it is too early in the season for me to make a comprehensive forecast of the 1953 crop prospects, there are a few high-lights that may be of interest. But, first, I can say that as of June 1 the outlook for most of the country was fairly good.

Another Bumper Wheat Crop

Wheat crops of a billion bushels or more have been commonplace in this country during recent years. The 1953 crop should be no exception to the rule, notwithstanding the very poor outlook in certain dry sections. Things would look brighter for the wheat farmer if the total crop were smaller, since storage space at the peak of the harvesting season will be at a premium. This will make it difficult, if not impossible, for some farmers to avail themselves of the government loan. Supplies of old-crop wheat are also heavy. This all adds up to burdensome total supplies for the 1953-1954 season, and may well preclude some form of government control on 1954 production.

I expect another relatively small rye crop this year, perhaps moderately larger than the 1952 output of 15,910,000 bushels, but well below the 10-year average of 25,837,000 bushels. However, it should suffice, since imports from Canada probably will take up any slack. Despite floods and other setbacks in the southern rice area, another big crop is on the way, and will be needed to meet a good prospective domestic and export demand.

Corn And Soybean Crops—If

Last spring, farmers indicated that they intended to plant almost as much acreage to corn this year as in 1952, when the final output amounted to 3,307,000,000 bushels—the second largest corn crop on record. Although excessive rainfall and cool weather delayed plantings in a number of important areas, the setback has been largely made up. Given favorable growing weather and no widespread frost damage later on, we should have another big corn crop this year. This should be good news to hog raisers, since it should help to maintain a profitable corn-hog ratio.

In the case of soybeans, I have maintained inaccessible to certain visitors.

Real scandal in the end may be the way the Navy railroaded Commander McDaniel as the scapegoat. McDaniel is not an Annapolis man. Other top brass are. He was held 40 days virtually incommunicado in the Navy brig without a charge being filed against him, which is contrary to the Bill of Rights. While he was held, Navy brass scratched their heads as to what charges they should file against him.

Vitamins, Not Dope

After all, it would be highly embarrassing to charge him with arranging a strip tease show under Navy auspices. So Navy investigators raided his desk, pounced on a bottle and tried to show that McDaniel was taking dope. It was also suggested he was acting as if he might commit suicide.

But the plot was exploded when a Navy doctor, Lt. William E. Perednia, admitted that superior officers had come to him with the hope charge and the suicide suggestion.

City Fathers Applaud

The city fathers not only gave their OK, but turned out enthusiastically for the first show. Holding down the bald-headed row at the first show were Key West's Mayor C. E. Harvey, City Manager Dave King, Chief of Police Joe Kemp, Superintendent of Schools Jack Guthrie, City Commissioner John Carbonell and Florida Circuit Judge Raymond Lord.

Some complained afterward that the movies were not spicy enough, so a second "smoker" was scheduled, again for charity. But Chaplain Imbrie had heard that the movies were risqué. He called on Capt. Buckley and registered his objections.

Buckley gave the chaplain a brush-off, but took the precaution to issue oral orders that the Navy should have nothing to do with the second "smoker."

Civilian employees were left free to do whatever they wished, however, and Howard McDonald, a civilian clerk, went ahead with the arrangements where McDaniel had left off. McDonald by-passed the American Legion, obtained juicier films, and after the movies, Sheila, the strip tease lady, mysteriously appeared and began shedding her clothes. Finally, she called to the crowd: "Want to wrestle!" Three obliging sailors then assisted in her act.

Eyebrows lifted

Following this second smoker, Chaplain Imbrie appealed to the Navy's head chaplain for advice, and wrote a full report to Washington. This raised eyebrows right up to the secretary of the Navy. On March 6, McDaniel was thrown in the brig, and McDonald, the civilian clerk, was suspended. A week later, Capt. Buckley was rushed to the hospital with a heart attack. It wasn't long afterwards that Admiral Duke was promoted to be commander of the Sixth Naval District and was transferred to Charleston, S. C.

McDaniel, in his guarded cell, was allowed to see no visitors except his wife, without a Navy chaperone present. He was denied all mailing privileges, which prevented him from writing letters of protest. Formal charges were not filed against him until April 16—40 days later.

Meanwhile, Capt. Buckley was questioned in his sickbed by the Navy investigators, but, the day after, he was pronounced "too sick" to be questioned by McDaniel's attorney. His court-martial will take place in July.

NOTE — Admiral Duke and

Capt. Buckley are Annapolis graduates. Buckley is lieutenant commander. His fitness reports consistently rated him among the top 10 per cent of Navy officers, but he doesn't belong to the so-called "Annapolis Protective Association."

geston. Perednia further testified that the seized dope was nothing but vitamin pills and that McDaniel had no suicidal tendencies.

The trouble all began from a most worthy motive—raising a record $70,000 for Key West charities. Someone suggested it might be a good idea to borrow some spicy films from the local American Legion and throw a "smoker." Capt. Buckley did not disapprove of the idea, and his subordinates felt they had the go-ahead signal.

There is no record that Admiral Duke, himself, was consulted, though he was responsible for all activities at the base. The "smoker" idea was taken up with his office, however, and his subordinates requested only that it be cleared with the city authorities.

City Fathers Applaud

The city fathers not only gave their OK, but turned out enthusiastically for the first show. Holding down the bald-headed row at the first show were Key West's Mayor C. E. # Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

General Bor's Ghost

WASHINGTON

Behind the scenes, one of the President's major campaign promises is getting its acid test. If the policy of "liberating" the Soviet Union's European satellites means anything at all, this is the moment to try it. The highest policy makers in the administration are currently engaged in a hot debate about "liberation's" meaning or lack of meaning.

The near-uprising in Eastern Germany is the immediate cause of the debate. Liberating East Germany is plainly not a practical proposition as long as Gen. Dzhzhov has 200 tanks to deploy, on a couple of hours notice, to quell a single riot in Berlin.

Yet the pattern of the East German disorders has made a very deep impression on the White House, on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, on the intelligence services, and on other policy makers. What began with a phony demonstration in Berlin became an immensely dangerous general conflagration, involving most of the important East German industrial centers.

Furthermore, neither the East German people's police nor the Bereitschaften (the East German satellite army) were trusted to put out the fire. Soviet forces were used for this purpose in all cases. The spread of the disorders, the courage and depth of feeling displayed by the rioters, the total distrust of their own puppets displayed by the Soviets, all betokened a profound and organic weakness. This weakness is held to be general, throughout the whole European satellite area.

Czechoslovakia A Danger Point

In particular — and here is where the test comes — Czechoslovakia is now considered to be a genuine danger point for the Kremlin. Riots at Pilsen, on the same pattern as those in Berlin, actually preceded the disorders in East Germany. Since the sudden death of President Gottwald, the Czech puppet government has been in a state of obvious confusion, with authority ill-defined and all the control machinery creaking under the strain.

As in Germany, so in Czechoslovakia, these are the "hunger months," just before the harvest. Even for favored industrial workers food is very short. The Czech currency reform has in effect condemned the whole very large Czech middle class to slow starvation. In short, all the materials are present for a major explosion.

Most important of all, there are no Soviet occupation forces in Czechoslovakia to stop an explosion if it should begin. Alone among the satellites, Czechoslovakia does not have the Red army on its back. Finally, the means are quite probably available to the West, to touch off a Czech explosion if this is considered desirable. An active underground is known to exist. The country has many listeners to the various radios, overt and clandestine, that are beamed to the satellite area. The right kind of encouragement by simple radio propaganda might well cause a full-scale explosion to occur overnight.

There is one grave difficulty, however. Gottwald's cringing successor, Antonin Zapotocky, would almost certainly "invite" the Red army to return to Czechoslovakia, and to "defend the people's democracy" against Western provocateurs. It is almost certain that the Red army would accept the invitation. There would then ensue a terrible slaughter, like the slaughter of the brave Poles in Warsaw when Gen. Bor-Komorowski led his premature uprising against the Nazis.

Policy Makers Divided

The ghost of Gen. Bor has a power, nowadays, that this heroic and unfortunate man never achieved in life. Single-handed his ghost has divided the American policy makers into two factions.

The liberators, who are said to include Secretary of State Dulles and the President's expert on psychological warfare, C. D. Jackson, would take the considerable risk of giving full encouragement to the present satellite unrest. According to report, the liberators argue that the satellite resistance movements must take their chance, and that forcing the Red army to move, into Czechoslovakia for instance, will amount to a major victory in the cold war in any case.

Those who remember Gen. Bor make the obvious reply, that it is both short-sighted and cold-blooded to give encouragement to the satellite resistance groups, unless we are prepared to come to their rescue. But being prepared to come to their rescue of course means being prepared to risk a war.

Whatever its outcome, this debate among the policy makers indicates a melancholy fact. Stalin's death and its sequel have offered the West the kind of opportunity that will not come again. The President, the secretary of State, and every other policy maker in our government is aware that if and when the new masters of the Kremlin bring their empire back under full control, the danger to the West will continuously increase. They have the papers before them, showing the increase of the Soviet's atomic stockpile, the curve of Soviet armament build-up, and so on.

As yet, only feebleness and indecision have been shown in the face of the present opportunity and the future danger.

Still Formosa

No far Eastern solution can omit Formosa. There stands a government which is recognized by the United States and holds a seat in the United Nations, as representing the Chinese people. The fact is that this government was defeated on the mainland by a revolutionary body supported in its rebellion by Soviet Russia, also a member of the United Nations.

The British and a large number of other countries have recognized the Chinese Communists as the government of China. They propose that the Nationalists be deprived of their seat in the United Nations and that the Chinese Communists be given that seat. That is one issue that is to be raised at the Bermuda conference between Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Eisenhower.

Lord Henderson, in a full dress speech in the House of Lords, stated the British position fully:

"Her Majesty's Government recognizes the Peking government, and there can surely be no doubt that, following a Korean peace, it is the government's intention to support the admission of Peking representatives to the United Nations."

"The second problem, the problem of Formosa, is more complex and presents special difficulties. The Peking government claims it. The Chinese Nationalists occupy it. I have also seen the suggestion that Formosa should enjoy a period of trusteeship under the United Nations."

What, in fact, will be the future status of Formosa is a matter which will be settled in negotiations for a Far Eastern peace, but if peace throughout Asia is to be to use President Eisenhower's words "true and total," one clear decision seems to be called for—that is, that Formosa cannot be allowed to continue to be used as a Chinese Nationalist base from which to carry on civil war and to build up and launch armed attacks on the Chinese mainland.

This is a very curious statement. The Formosan government was up to 1948 the universally recognized government of China, allied to Great Britain as well as to the United States. It had been the second most important participant in the Far Eastern phase of World War II. The Chinese Communists were the insurgents who conducted

Elliot's home here the other night, Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain's diplomat who talks circles round the Russians at the UN, praised like a book-burning speech, "even though illiterate," but couldn't understand why he reversed himself on book-burning two days later.

a civil war against the duly constituted government of China. True, under plans for a truce between the Nationalists and the Communists arranged by General George Marshall, the rebels were victorious on the mainland, but they did not succeed in destroying the Nationalists, who took refuge on Formosa and have maintained a government there.

How can Lord Henderson say that the duly constituted government, with a seat in the United Nations, is conducting a civil war against the rebels? Nothing in international law explains such a paradox. Nothing under the United Nations charter creates such a condition. Lord Henderson was undoubtedly stating the formal policy of the British government, which recognized the Chinese Communists in pursuit of trade. But these views have never publicly been proclaimed as the policy of either the Truman or the Eisenhower administration.

As regards a United Nations trusteeship for Formosa, it was first mentioned by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in April at an off-the-record conversation with selected newsmen. Dulles subsequently denied that such was the United States plan. The White House also disclaimed it.

This plan will never be accepted by Chiang Kai-shek any more than Syngman Rhee has accepted the occupation of his country by Chinese Communists and Indian troops. From my long experience with Asiatic peoples, I can only see massacres, assassinations and terror in the future. The Koreans will no more submit to the presence of Hindus in their country than they submitted to the Japanese and to Chinese Communists. They even opposed a Formosan participating army.

The Americans were not resisted because the Koreans knew, as all Asiatics do, that Americans always go home. They are not empire-builders and they have no desire to occupy the lands of other peoples.

That has never been the history of the Chinese or the Hindus, who have in their history occupied areas imperially. China held Korea in suzerainty for 300 years; Japan annexed Korea. Similarly, the Chinese Nationalists while they can work with the United States, cannot risk a United Nations trusteeship which can only be a forerunner to handing the island over to the Chinese Communists.

Our allies have more trouble with our varying policies than the countries that engaged us in war.

Legion And City To Sponsor Event

FROSTBURG — Plans have been completed for the fourth annual fireworks exhibit to be held on the grounds of Beall High School the evening of July 4, under auspices of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, and the Mayor and City Commissioners.

Motor car parking will be supervised by Charles Cole and Ronald A. Cosgrove.

Post Commander George Layman, assisted by Earl Miller and Paul Stewart, will be in charge of the sale of soft drinks.

The Frostburg Fire Department will have a truck near the high school to respond to any alarm during the display.

The cost of this year's display is $750 and all persons are being asked to help finance the project.

City Police Begin 40-Hour Week Today

The Cumberland Police Department will have two changes beginning today. Commissioner of Police and Fire, John J. Long reports.

One will be the making of three streets one-way, and the other will be the beginning of a trial period for a 40-hour work week for City Police officers.

Following a conference with Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn Saturday, the commissioner announced the department will make Yale Street, Waverly Terrace and part of Patterson Avenue, one-way.

Yale Street will be one-way from Baltimore Avenue northeast to Cemetery Lane; Waverly Terrace which runs from 307 Baltimore Street north to Marion Street, and Patterson Avenue from Allegany Street to Beall Street. Signs will be posted.

The commissioner and Chief Flynn said a 40-hour work schedule for each of the 48 officers has been worked out.

The chief of police will always have a definite quota of men on duty at all times, the commissioner observed, as vacation schedules have been arranged so that only a certain number of men will be off at one time.

The two days off each week have been allotted to the officers according to their seniority rights, Long and Flynn pointed out.

The cooperation of the officers is necessary, Long said, in making the trial 40-hour work week schedule a success so that it can be made permanent.

For the next three weeks Chief Flynn will be on duty at various times on all three platoons to clear up any obstacles that may arise from the new schedule.

Some of the extra service provided by Police Department will be discontinued. For instance, the commissioner noted, the supplying of armed escorts for money transactions between the bank and the A&P Supermarkets will be discontinued today. The market management has been notified, he said.

Another service that will be curtailed will be the stationing of officers at intersections during school and travel hours, Long observed.

Lt. R. R. Johnston has been assigned the job of coordinating the work of the school patrols at crossings with the Police Department, the commissioner said.

Social Security Schedule Adds Visits To Frostburg

The Social Security Administration Saturday announced a new schedule of visits to itinerant points serviced by the Cumberland field office.

Donald S. Hudson, field representative of the Cumberland office, said that while only one itinerant service point was being added, that twice monthly trips to five locations would increase this public service considerably.

He also pointed out that service to any given place is determined by workload and from the present trend in the area served by Cumberland it appears now that this schedule will be maintained for at least the next fiscal year.

Frostburg Placed On List

The new itinerant point being added is Frostburg. As an administrative economy measure this station was discontinued some time ago. The new schedule calls for reopening this station at City Hall on the first and third Tuesday of each month at 1 p. m.

In addition to returning Frostburg to the schedule, twice monthly visits will be made to Moorefield, Petersburg, Keyser, Piedmont and Oakland. The Moorefield and Petersburg visits will be made on the first and third Wednesday of the month. The representative will continue to use the Court House in both places and will be in Moorefield at 11 a. m. and Petersburg at 1 p. m.

Keyser and Piedmont will be the second and fourth Friday of the month at 10 a. m. at the Court House in Keyser and 1 p. m. at the American Legion in Piedmont. The second and fourth Tuesday of the month and the representative will be at the State Employment Office at 1 p. m.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 28 (INS)—The best selling "7½ cents" has been bought by Freddie Brissson, Robert Griffith and Hal Prince for a Broadway musical, to be followed by a movie, and Freddie was very excited when he called to tell me:

"We're talking to Cary Grant, Gene Kelly and Van Johnson and one of them will star in both the stage and screen versions."

"George Abbott, one of Broadway's greatest, is already signed to direct. And we're discussing the musical score with Frank Loesser."

I don't wonder at Freddie's enthusiasm. The Richard Bissell novel, a satire on the garment industry, has had great reviews.

All through with waiting for Betty Grable, Columbia starts "The Pleasure of All Mine" Sept. 15 with Rita Hayworth!

The musical which has been styled ever since Betty took a walk (and 20th suspended her) has been completely converted to Rita, which didn't take too much doing as both girls sing and dance.

Rita will make it between "Miss Sadie Thompson" and the big biblical spectacle, "Mary Magdalene."

Betty has informed 20th she's willing to work but her peevish bosses have not lifted the ban on her salary checks.

No matter what happens between her and George Sanders means time, Zsa Zsa Gabor goes to Egypt in January to make "Joseph and the Wife of Potiphar" with Errol Flynn.

Flynn wants George for this, too. "I'm speaking for myself," said Zsa Zsa. "I'm not speaking for George. We're not speaking!"

In three weeks, La Gabor takes off for Europe although the Flynn picture doesn't start till January. She'll do a night club stint at the Casanova in London and another movie before joining Flynn the first of the year.

Las Vegas again: To get in all the new shows you need a bicycle. The gorgeous Lena Horne — younger looking and more luscious than when she first started — is enchanting the customers at the Sands. What a girl! What a voice!

Her young daughter, who is on vacation, is with Lena and so is her husband Lennie Hayton, who does her marvelous arrangements. Larry Finley and his mike are set up in the lobby of the Sands and the place is jammed. Joe E. Lewis came over from El Rancho Vegas to be interviewed. Ditto Spike Jones and Helen Grayco (from the Flamingo) and the Ames Brothers (at the Sahara).

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Patricia Neal and Magazine Editor Raoul Dahl have set July 2 for their wedding.

It isn't true that Guy Madison and his estranged wife, Gail Russell, have been dating. Haven't seen each other since they parted.

The Tom Gries (he scripted "Donovan's Brain") will be officially parted tomorrow when she tells it to a judge.

JUST SUBTRACT FROM 13
A GOODLY proportion of the declarer's card-reading is based on a very simple formula. If one opponent had made an overcall at a high point during the auction, as high as three or more, on his first turn. The key is subtracting from 13. First estimate the length of the suit which was probably necessary for his bid, especially if he being vulnerable tended to keep him sound. The number left after deducting that from 13 is his probable number of cards in the other three suits. Subtracting that result from those three suits will give you his partner's probable count, which becomes more and more exact in specific suits as the play progresses.

These "easy-do" sparkle tricks will transform your oldest accessories into July Fourth eye catchers!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Is there a lass among you charmers who would not like to out-sparkle a sparkler on the Fourth of July?

It's a trick that can be wrought with a bit of ingenuity. Go to your nearest game art or hobby shop and get yourself a bottle of "sparkle" grains and the liquid adhesive that goes with it. You will then be able to transform your oldest accessory into a fascinating new touch — one that will lend any evening outfit a vibrant, eye-catching flair.

Stockings make exciting eye-catchers when treated with sparkles and worn with strip sandals. Here's how to go about it: Line a stocking's toe with a smooth ball of wax paper. With a child's paint brush, apply your liquid adhesive in a polka dot design — or whatever strikes your fancy. Immediately sprinkle on a generous amount of sparkles. Press them firmly into the adhesive with your fingers. Allow fifteen minutes for drying; remove the paper and shake off loose sparkles. Presto—twinkle toes are yours!

You can even make glamour out of stockings with runners. Just follow the runs with your sparkle treatment and you'll have a new pair of evening stockings that are pace setters!

Those old but - oh-so-comfortable kid evening slippers can also be transformed into dancables as notable as Cinderella's glass slippers. Treat them first with a cover-coat of metallic lacquer. You can make this from the metal powder and fluid that artists use. Then follow up with the sparkle treatment.

Hair combs, earrings, scarves, veils and artificial flowers can all be dusted with sparkles for fresh, new accents.

Gallant Try

For the opening of Revlon Mirror Theater—the names of these dramatic shows are getting flossier by the minute—the producers, Donald Davis and Dorothy Mathews, selected that most difficult of assignments, a mood play called "The Little Wife."

It was one of those stories in which a character is held, poised on the outset, on the brink of tragedy while a series of flashbacks tell you what it is all about. A traveling salesman (Eddie Albert) is rushing home to his wife who is in a pretty rough shape after giving birth to a baby. Another traveling salesman (Henry Jours) offers him quiet sympathy and understanding. Long before the train gets to his destination, you are made aware that the wife is already dead. Still, he keeps pouring out the story of his marriage to the other traveling salesman, as if the girl were still alive, though the other man knows very well she isn't.

That's all there was to it. I can see where it must have been a very effective short story of its particular genre. But it wasn't. I'm afraid, very effective as a television play—in spite of fine performances by Albert and Jours—because it violated certain dramatic rules which are inviolable. The story was all over before it began. A short story writer can get away with this because he has limitless space to move around in; the television dramatist, imprisoned by four walls, hasn't that freedom. He has to go somewhere. Still, it was a gallant try and I hope Davis and Mathews won't be frightened away from mood plays because it didn't come off. Revlon Theater is one of the more ambitious summer replacements, taking the first half-hour of the Milton Berle spot (NBC-TV 8:00 PM E.D.T. Tuesdays). Tomorrow night the story will be Rebecca West's "Salt of the Earth."

Well, the Revlon people are staging a similar contest between Revlon and two ordinary lipstick to see which one is the most imperishable, and again we have to sit out a whole act before we find out who won. (Revlon won the first fall easy, but it's early in the season yet.) The unremovability of lipstick is its biggest selling point. I guess, because the Hazel Bishop people are on the same tack on the "Candid Camera" program. There, Don Ameche ruses lipsticks, one ordinary, one Hazel Bishop—on a young lady's palm and then demonstrates that the ordinary ruses right off, the Hazel Bishop is as indestructible as the Pyramids. A fine thing! What's that girl going to do—go through life with that smear of lipstick on her right hand?

"Candid Camera" incidentally, has not changed a bit which is its grave trouble. Originally, it was supposed to catch people, unaware, just being themselves. The trouble is that Allen Funt, who owns it, insists on making a practical joke out of it. He stations himself in a jail and bullies a waiter who doesn't bring him a knife with his meal; he talks double talk to a couple of kids who have put dimes in a soft-drink machine without getting anything for it; he torments a man who is just trying to get a suitcase repaired.

In those circumstances, everyone acts just like everyone else—confused, irritated, baffled. It's the same thing over and over again and its getting damned dull.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
AXYDLBAAXR
is LONG FELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's. X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Gallant Try

For the opening of Revlon Mirror Theater—the names of these dramatic shows are getting flossier by the minute—the producers, Donald Davis and Dorothy Mathews, selected that most difficult of assignments, a mood play called "The Little Wife."

It was one of those stories in which a character is held, poised from the outset, on the brink of tragedy while a series of flashbacks tell you what it is all about. A traveling salesman (Eddie Albert) is rushing home to his wife who is a pretty rough shape after giving birth to a baby. Another traveling salesman (Henry Jones) offers him quiet sympathy and understanding. Long before the train gets to his destination, you are made aware that the wife is already dead. Still, he keeps pouring out the story of his marriage to the other traveling salesman, as if the girl were still alive, though the other man knows very well she isn't.

That's all there was to it. I can see where it must have been a very effective short story of its particular genre. But it wasn't. I'm afraid, very effective as a television play—in spite of fine performances by Albert and Jones—because it violated certain dramatic rules which are inviolable. The story was all over before it began. A short story writer can let away with this because he has limitless space to move around in; the television dramatist, imprisoned by four walls, hasn't that freedom. He has to go somewhere. Sulk it was a gallant try and I hope Davis and Mathews won't be frightened away from mood plays because it didn't come off. Revlon Theater is one of the more ambitious summer replacements, taking the first half-hour of the Milton Berle spot (NBC-TV 8:00 PM EDT, Tuesdays). Tomorrow night the story will be Rebecca West's "Salt of the Earth."

Well, the Revlon people are staging a similar contest between Revlon and two ordinary lipstick to see which one is the most imperishable, and again we have to sit out a whole act before we find out who won. (Revlon won the first fall away, but it's early in the season yet.) The unremovability of lipstick is its biggest selling point. I guess, because the Hazel Bishop people are on the same tack on the "Candid Camera" program. There, Don Ameche rubs lipstick, an ordinary, one Hazel Bishop—on a young lady's palm and then demonstrates that the ordinary rubs right off, the Hazel Bishop is as indestructible as the Pyramids. A fine thing! What's that girl going to do—go through life with that smear of lipstick on her right hand?

"Candid Camera," incidentally, has not changed a bit which is its grave trouble. Originally, it was supposed to catch people, unaware, just being themselves. The trouble is that Allen Funt, who owns it, insists on making a practical joke out of it. He stations himself in a jail and bullies a waiter who doesn't bring him a knife with his meal; he talks double talk to a couple of kids who have put dimes in a soft-drink machine without getting anything for it; he torments a man who is just trying to get a suitcase repaired. In those circumstances, everyone acts just like everyone else—confused, irritated, baffled. It's the same thing over and over again and its getting damned dull.

The Art of Thinking

Every man to his business, but indeed the craft of a tailor is beyond all doubt as noble and as secret as any in the world. To take a bolt of cloth and work with such simple tools as chalk, needle, thread, scissors and hot iron and bring from them a suit to fit every bump and crease of the body, without ugliness, is a royal mystery indeed and one beyond the knowledge of most men. For all mankind has had joy to death himself right from the very beginning, and none shall say when that was.

Meet Hoad And Rose At Wimbledon Today
WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 28 (INS)—Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., America's two remaining hopes in the men's singles of the Wimbledon tennis championships, face a couple of Australian hotshots in Monday's quarter finals.

The second-seeded Seixas, regarded as the top Uncle Sam threat, goes against 18-year-old Aussie whiz kid Lewis Hoad while the left-handed Larsen meets third-seeded Mervin Rose.

There was no play in the tournament Sunday because of Britain's blue laws.

Another quarter-final match that should be interesting pits tourney favor Ken Rosewall of Australia against Denmark's Kurt Nielsen. The top-seeded 18-year-old Rosewall has been in somewhat of a slump, while the Danish Davis Cupper is fresh from pulling the big upset of the championships.

Nielsen, who is unranked, ousted fifth-seeded Gardner Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., Saturday.

Veterans Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt and Sven Davidson of Sweden are opponents in the last men's quarter final match.

A's, Browns Divide
PHILADELPHIA, June 28 (AP)—Pitcher Carl Scheib of the Philadelphia Athletics won his own ball game 2-1 with a ninth-inning single after catcher Joe Astroth had tripled with two out and the scored tied 1-1 in the nightcap of a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns today. The Browns had won the first game 4-1.

It was strictly a battery matter afternoon. Catcher Clint Courtney was the whole show in the Browns' first-game victory.

Scheib's nightcap winning hit came off reliever Satchel Paige, who had taken over from starter Mike Blyskal after Astroth's three-base blow.

West Taps East All-Star Battle
Dolly's Single In 9th Decides Contest, 9-8
MOOREFIELD, W. Va., June 28 —Norris Dolly of Petersburg singled through short to score Wallace Sherman of Moorefield with the run that gave the West a 9-8 decision over the East in the South Branch Valley Baseball League's All-Star game here today.

Dolly's winning wallop came in the last of the ninth inning. The East had tied the score at 8-8 by registering two runs in the top of the 8th frame.

The West team was composed of 19 players from the Franklin, Petersburg and Moorefield nines. Fifteen Romney, Lost City and Wardensville tilters represented the East.

Sherman got a life on an error by Wilkins of Lost City to open the ninth. J. Sites of Franklin sacrificed. When Teets of Wardensville muffed Herbert Sites' fly, Sherman advanced to third. Sites pilfered second and Norris singled over the deciding tally.

Bob Beck of Romney belted a homer for the East in the second inning and Bob Keller of Moorefield hit a two-run homer for the West in the same stanza.

Lefty Bob Pope, of Franklin, the West's third pitcher, was credited with the win. He fanned four and walked two. Gordon Raines, Moorefield, and Jimmy Kessel, Petersburg, who preceded him, struck out one and five.

Tom Frye of Romney was charged with the defeat. Allen Kenny started on the mound for the East and was followed by Keplinger of Lost City and Frye.

Bob Keller was the game's batting star. He smacked a homer and single and drove in four of the West's tallies. Kessel collected two hits in two trips to the plate.

Umpires who donated their services for the game were Earl Conn, Jim Angellata and "Chick" Snider.

Keyser Ridge defeated Zihlman, 6-3, Barrelville trimmed Salisbury, 10-3, and Meyersdale won over Wellersburg, 7-3 in Pen-Mar Baseball League games played yesterday at Keyser Ridge, Barrelville and Meyersdale.

Jack Brodie's relief pitching highlighted Keyser Ridge's win over Zihlman. The former Central High (Lonaconing) star relieved Bobby Keister in the 4th with the score knotted at 3-3 and pitched six innings of shutout ball to get credit for the victory.

Mort led the league leaders at the plate with three hits while Nelson and Brodie had two each. Bobby Goss, "Bubbles" Thompson, Jack Robeson and Burke shared eight of the losers' nine safeties.

Meyersdale took over third place by taking Wellersburg into camp. The Pennsylvanians obtained ten of their 12 hits off Hansel, who relieved Duckworth in the 4th inning. The excessive heat forced Duckworth and Bill Price, starting pitcher, to retire in the fifth inning. Price got credit for the win and Duckworth was charged with the loss.

Patsy Tuscano, J. M. Brown and Nelson had two hits each for Meyersdale while Robinette obtained four blows in five trips and Bridges banged a triple for Wellersburg. The loss dropped Wellersburg into the league cellar.

Barrelville retained the runner-up spot by downing Salisbury, W. Morgan, J. Skidmore and Cenna garnered six of the winners' 11 safeties while Hoffman, B. Brown and Hillegas shared six of Salisbury's 10 wallopings. Thomas of Salisbury and McGregor of Barrelville featured at short with their fielding scores:

Oakland Man Is Vice Commander

Peter J. Carpenti, local attorney, yesterday was elected without opposition as judge advocate general of the Amvets of Maryland at the close of the organization's eighth annual convention in Middletown yesterday.

The only other area man elected to office yesterday was Clyde McNemar of Oakland, second vice commander.

New Commander

Fred Kefauver of Middletown was elected and installed as commander. He and all other officers were elected without opposition.

Others unopposed for election were Bernard Warrenfeltz, Frederick, first vice commander; Joseph Keys, Frederick, vice commander-at-large; Allan Nicholson, Middletown, finance officer; William Gladhill, Middletown, adjutant; David Preller, Baltimore, delegate to national convention; Michael Luciano, alternate delegate, and James Walsh, Frederick, provost marshal.

Information Lacking

"At this eleventh hour," he explained, "this should not be a subject at the local or state level. We do not have that pertinent information necessary and could not make any logical recommendation."

The commander said regardless of the decisions reached, the AMVETS will go along with them as patriotic Americans, and "we will again muddle out the mistakes which we might feel have been made," he added.

Rep. Dewitt S. Hyde (R-Md) was the principal speaker at a banquet Saturday night. The department's third annual membership trophy was presented the Baltimore Post for making the greatest increase in members the past year. Certificates for increased membership went to Cumberland, Frederick and Middletown.

Crash Sends Four Victims To Hospitals

Accident Occurs Near Moorefield

A collision between an automobile and a light truck on U. S. Route 220 three miles south of Moorefield, W. Va., yesterday afternoon sent four injured persons to hospitals—two of them to Memorial Hospital here and the other two to Harrisonburg, Va.

At Memorial Hospital are: Leon Crites, 23, Petersburg, W. Va., lacerations of the scalp.

Mrs. Beulah Jeffers, 31, Hyattsville, formerly of Petersburg, lacerations of the scalp and possible internal injuries.

At Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg.

Troy Vance Funkhouser, 25, Mathias, W. Va., facial lacerations and possible rib fractures.

His wife, Kay, 18 facial lacerations and possible knee fracture.

Cpl. C. G. Hamrick of West Virginia State Police, who investigated the crash, said that the automobile which Mrs. Jeffers was driving north on Route 220 skidded on the wet surface of the highway when she attempted to apply brakes, and collided head-on with the pickup truck driven southbound by Funkhouser.

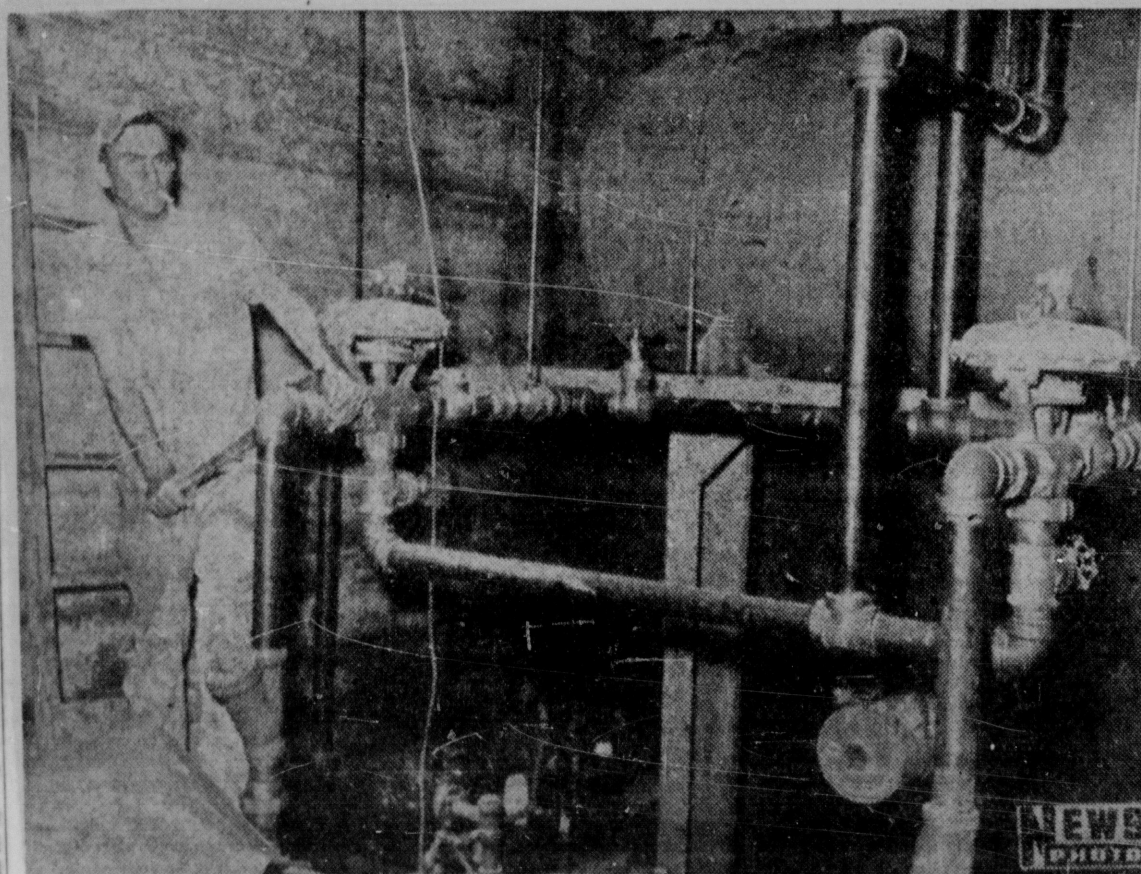

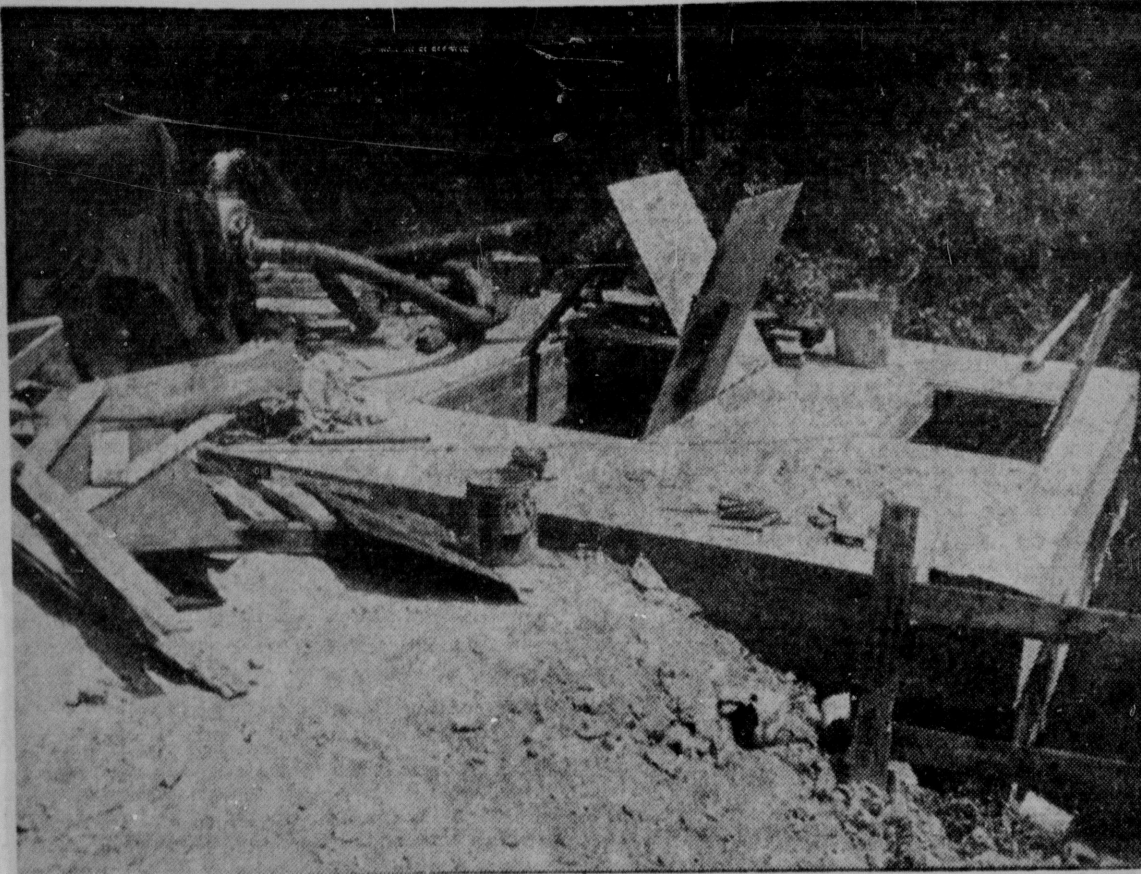

Mrs. Jeffers and Crites, who was riding with her, were hurt but her daughter, Ronda, about four, also a passenger, escaped injury.

Mrs. Roy Anderson, 52, of Moorefield, who was riding in the truck with the Funkhousers, sustained a bruised forehead and a knee laceration but was sent home after receiving emergency treatment at the scene.

Two ambulances hurried to the scene. One chose to make the 60-mile trip to Harrisonburg and the other decided to take the trip to Cumberland.

Cpl. Hamrick, who was assisted in his investigation by Moorefield Police Chief Gilbert Robinette, said damage to the two vehicles will run in the neighborhood of $2,000.

Meanwhile, two Ridgeley youths are recuperating in Sacred Heart Hospital here from injuries sustained early Saturday morning in a car accident. Michael Mulligan, 18, is in good condition and Oscar Ridgeley, 22, is in fair condition, hospital attaches report.

Sewage Ejector Unit

The sewage ejector station being built at the intersection of Bedford and Frederick Street will be completed within a few days. The top photo shows the top of the structure, which will be entirely enclosed when completed. In the lower photo, Durward B. Graham, a pipefitter, is installing part of one of two ejector pots which comprise the system. Sewage collected from the area will be ejected alternately from the sewage pots by air pressure and forced into mains which will lead it to the city by gravity.

Fire Destroys Clayton Tavern Near Beans Cove

Owner Estimates Loss At $18,000

An early morning blaze raged through a tavern on the Beans Cove Road and caused damage estimated at $18,000, firemen reported yesterday.

Chief Harry M. DeHaven, of the Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company, said the fire resulted in a total loss of Clayton's Road House in nearby Pennsylvania.

He said the establishment was operated by Harold Clayton, former Cumberland business man, for his mother. It was formerly known as O'Leary's Tavern.

Chief DeHaven said the Baltimore Pike firemen, headed by Assistant Chief Joseph Bruner, and the Flintstone Volunteer Fire Company, were called to the blaze at 4:40 a. m.

The one-story log tavern was a mass of flames when firemen arrived, with no water available within a mile.

The fire companies used water from booster tanks to save a number of cabins adjacent to the tavern.

Clayton, who made his home in a nearby cabin, told firemen he was awakened about 4:30 a. m. yesterday to find the entire rear of the tavern in flames.

He told firemen the blaze sounded like a car backfiring.

Clayton was able to save only a pinball machine as his wife ran to a telephone more than a mile away to summon firemen.

Firemen said Clayton estimated the loss from the building and its equipment at about $18,000, only partially covered by insurance.

Traffic Law Enforcement Mark Cited

Maryland has won an honorable mention award in the annual citations made by the International Association of Chiefs of Police for outstanding performance in traffic law enforcement.

A plaque will be forwarded to Maryland by the group, and will be formally accepted on behalf of the Maryland State Police by its commander, Col. Elmer F. Munshower.

This is the fourth year that the association has honored police agencies for excellence in traffic work. The awards are based on evaluation of enforcement reports, which were furnished for Maryland by the State Police Statistical Division.

Winners are determined after reports are evaluated with the help of recommendations from the enforcement committee of the President's Highway Safety Conference. This is the first time that Maryland has received an award in the evaluation. The citations were based on enforcement work during 1952.

Judges for the competition included: Chief Emile E. Bugnon, Wood-ridge, New Jersey, chairman; Chief Carl F. Hansson, Dallas, Texas, and Chief W. J. Elliott, Texas Highway Patrol.

The judges were assisted by J. D. Hill, field representative of the National Safety Council.

Highway Crash Near Big Savage Hospitalizes Five

Three Cars Figure In Bad Smashup

Five persons were admitted to Miners Hospital in Frostburg early yesterday afternoon for treatment of injuries sustained in a collision involving three automobiles along National Highway west of Big Savage Mountain.

The hospitalized: Bergen Fay Thompson, 56, of 206 Elder Street, chipped left kneecap and head lacerations. His wife, Mrs. Susie Thompson, about 55, rib injuries.

Howard Catley, 57, 13800 Fair Hill Road, Shaker Heights, Ohio, broken ribs and chest injuries.

His wife, Mrs. May Catley, 47, broken right leg and lacerations of head and legs.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lebler, 50, also of Shaker Heights, a passenger in the Catley car, broken finger, injuries to ankle and eye.

Hospital attaches said all five were resting fairly comfortably last night and were not considered in serious condition. The Ohio man sustained the most extensive injuries.

Trooper First Class Blair J. Buckle of Grantsville, who with Trooper First Class Donald R. Wade and Trooper Patrick W. Stakem investigated the crash, said that the accident occurred about 12:15 p. m. yesterday when Catley's automobile, headed east, skidded on the wet highway and collided with Thompson's west-bound car. It was raining slightly at the time.

A third automobile, driven east behind the Catley car by Willis Audrey Starcher, 40, 102 Hillcrest Road, Hagerstown, traveled off the highway and hit a guard rail on the right to avoid striking the Ohioan's car. Miss Shirley Royer, 24, RFD 1, Waynesboro, Pa., who was riding with Starcher, sustained injuries to her left wrist but was dismissed from Miners Hospital after receiving emergency treatment. Starcher was unhurt.

Also uninjured in the accident was Miss Ruth Catley, 14-year old daughter of the Shaker Heights couple.

All three cars involved in the crash were damaged extensively. Trooper Buckle, who is continuing the investigation of the case, said last night that no charges have been filed.

Former Pastors Attend Church Homecoming

Four former pastors and a son of the church who entered the ministry all participated in homecoming and rededication ceremonies yesterday at Grace Methodist Church on Virginia Avenue.

Rev. Jesse P. Dawson, now of Prince Frederick, who was pastor of Grace Church from 1934 until 1940, preached at the morning worship service, attended by a congregation of about 300 persons.

Memorials Dedicated

At the morning service an altar, cross, candlesticks and a Bible for the Ladies Bible Class were dedicated as well as a pair of brass vases and new pews for the sanctuary. Rev. Adam E. Grim, pastor, said that most of these gifts were memorials to deceased members of the church.

Three other former pastors were participants in the evening worship last night. They were Rev. Allen B. Fisher, now of Gatch Memorial Church in Baltimore, who was pastor at the Virginia Avenue church from 1947 until 1952; Rev. Hunter, now pastor of the Haleshorpe Church near Baltimore, who was here from 1945 until 1947. Rev. Hunter was the preacher.

Son Of Church

Also present was Rev. Harry Amtower, who went into the ministry from Grace Church. He is now a teacher at Baltimore City College and is a supply pastor for churches in Baltimore.

About 150 persons attended a fellowship supper at the church at 6 o'clock.

Rev. Grim explained that the homecoming was arranged because of a number of improvements that have been made in the church property in the past three months. Included are new pews, new flooring, new carpets and an additional room.

Today's Sermonette

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him. James 1:12.

Today's sermonette is a digest of a sermon preached recently at Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church by the pastor, Rev. Raymond A. Faulds, Jr. The sermon digests are being prepared through the co-operation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Enduring Our Temptations

By REV. R. A. FAULDS, JR.

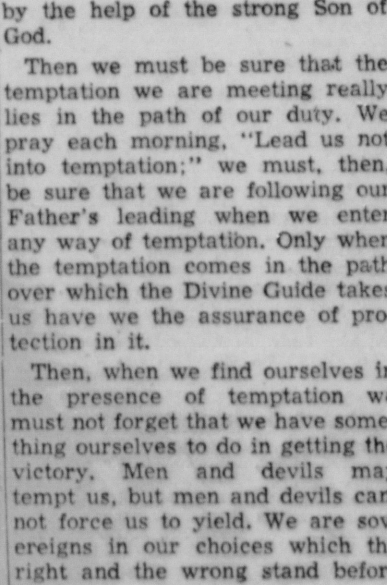

The experience of temptation is universal. Every life must grow up amid unfriendly and opposing influences. There are four possible experiences in regard to the trials of life. (1) They may fall of that which may be their best result. (2) They may be made seductions to evil and yielded to. (3) They may be suffered just as brutes suffer pain. (4) They may be "endured." Blessed is the man who has this last experience.

The question in life is not how to escape temptations, but how to pass through it so as not to be harmed by it. Christ's way of helping us is not by keeping us out of the conflicts. All the best things in life, the only things worth grasping, lie beyond the fields of struggle, and we can get them only by overcoming.

We must meet temptation, and we must make up our minds to fight. Not to fight is to lose all. It is possible to meet the strongest temptations and not be hurt by them. It has been done in the past. Men have met the fiercest enemies, the most unrelenting oppositions, passed through the hottest flames, and have come out unscathed.

There is even a way of so meeting temptations as to get benefit and blessing from them. The apostle said, "Count it all joy when ye fall into manifold temptations, knowing that the proving of your faith worketh patience." "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he hath been approved he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord promised to them that love him." Rightly meeting and victoriously resisting puts new fiber into the soul. The Indians say that when a warrior kills a foe the spirit of the vanquished enemy enters the victor's heart and adds to his own strength. This is true in spiritual warfare. Each evil conquered adds to the strength of our soul.

The question, then, is how to meet temptation so as to overcome and thus win the blessing there is in it. We must remember, first of all, that we are not able in ourselves successfully to fight our battles. If we think we are, and go forth in our own name and strength, we shall fail. Life is too large and its struggles and conflicts are too sore for the strongest human power unaided. We must settle it one and for all that we can conquer only in the name and

Fireman Is Hurt During CD Practice

A 31-year-old LaVale fireman was injured yesterday afternoon when a fire hose coupling pulled apart during a civil defense drill at Mt. Savage.

Warren Livengood, member of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital at about 5 p. m. with injuries of the left knee and right ankle. Attaches said his condition was good and will be held for observation and X-rays.

Firemen explained the drill was called to determine how much water could be pumped from the creek at Mt. Savage to the new Mt. Savage High School, located on a hill, in the event of an emergency.

Livengood was thrown into the stream by the force of the water from the broken hose, firemen said.

Parkway Bill Gains Support

The C&O Canal Parkway has sustained another obstacle.

A bill prepared by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde to give the Secretary of the Interior authority to grant rights-of-way through, over and under parkway land along the canal has been approved by the House of Representatives' Interior Subcommittee.

Hyde previously told the subcommittee that industries have wanted to locate in Maryland along the Potomac River but have been unable to get permission to cross the canal, owned by the Department of the Interior, to get water from the Potomac.

A provision of the bill passed by the General Assembly in Annapolis in the past session giving the State Roads Commission money for rights-of-way along the parkway was that the federal government must enact legislation providing perpetual easements across the proposed road.

Only the section of the proposed parkway between Cumberland and Hancock is authorized by this state act.

Weather

Two brief, heavy showers yesterday afternoon brought relief to the Cumberland area which sweltered in 90-degree temperatures. Rain shortly after noon pushed mercury from 90 to 78 in an hour, and at 5 p. m. a 90-degree reading had been dropped to 84 by another shower. High temperature was 91, officially low was 63 and at 8 p. m. mercury stood at 80 degrees, according to Constitution Park weather station. Humidity at 6 p. m. was a damp 77 per cent. The Weather Bureau says considerable cloudiness, warm and humid for today with scattered showers and thundershowers.

State Society Buys Script Of "Star Spangled Banner"

BALTIMORE, June 28 (AP)—The Maryland Historical Society announced yesterday it had bought the original manuscript of "The Star-Spangled Banner" with $20,428.23 donated by a relative of Francis Scott Key, its author.

The society and the Walters Art Gallery, which has held the relic since 1934, said the manuscript will remain in the gallery until special display facilities can be set up in the society's quarters.

The target date is Sept. 12, celebrated in Maryland as Defender's Day in commemoration of the bombardment of Fort Mchenry by the British in the War of 1812. It was during the successful defense of the fort that Key wrote the historic poem, which later was set to music and designated the national anthem.

The manuscript was bought with money donated by Mrs. Thomas

Courtney Jenkins in memory of her late husband's mother, Mrs. Catherine Key Jenkins, a relative of the poet.

The society said Mrs. Jenkins also had offered to pay for the cost of displaying and preserving the document.

With the manuscript will go one of the two known surviving copies of the handbills on which the verses written by Key were printed for distribution to Baltimoreans during the bombardment.

The envelope on the back of which the poet had scribbled the poem had been in the family of Judge Joseph Hopper Nicholson until 1907. Key had given it to Nicholson, his brother-in-law, during the bombardment.

In 1907 it was bought from Nicholson's granddaughter, Mrs. Edward Shippen, by Henry Walters, a collector.

Water Tank Project

City workers have completed pouring concrete for the foundation of the North End Water Tank, which will be located on Chedworth Avenue. Three of the four piers are seen in the foreground. To the rear are parts of the 75,000 gallon tank which will be assembled in about a month, after the concrete foundation has cured. The tank will provide North Cumberland with a high pressure water system.

State Society Buys Script Of "Star Spangled Banner"

BALTIMORE, June 28 (AP)—The Maryland Historical Society announced yesterday it had bought the original manuscript of "The Star-Spangled Banner" with $26,428.23 donated by a relative of Francis Scott Key, its author.

The society said Mrs. Jenkins also had offered to pay for the cost of displaying and preserving the document.

With the manuscript will go one of the two known surviving copies of the handbills on which the verses written by Key were printed for distribution to Baltimoreans during the bombardment.

The envelope on the back of which the poet had scribbled the poem had been in the family of Judge Joseph Hopper Nicholson until 1907. Key had given it to Nicholson, his brother-in-law, during the bombardment.

In 1907 it was bought from Nicholson's granddaughter, Mrs. Edward Shippen, by Henry Walters, a collector.

Today's Sermonette

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him. James 1:12.

Today's sermonette is a digest of a sermon preached recently at Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church by the pastor, Rev. Raymond A. Faulds, Jr. The sermon digests are being prepared through the co-operation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Enduring Our Temptations

By REV. R. A. FAULDS, JR.

The experience of temptation is universal. Every life must grow up amid unfriendly and opposing influences. There are four possible experiences in regard to the trials of life. (1) They may fall of that which may be their best result. (2) They may be made seductions to evil and yielded to. (3) They may be suffered just as brute sufferings. (4) They may be "endured." Blessed is the man who has this last experience.

The question in life is not how to escape temptations, but how to pass through it so as not to be harmed by it. Christ's way of helping us is not by keeping us out of the conflicts. All the best things in life, the only things worth grasping, lie beyond the fields of struggle, and we can get them only by overcoming.

We must meet temptation, and we must make up our minds to fight. Not to fight is to lose all. It is possible to meet the strongest temptations and not be hurt by them. It has been done in the past. Men have met the fiercest enemies, the most unrelenting oppositions, passed through the hottest flames, and have come out unscathed.

There is even a way of so meeting temptations as to get benefit and blessing from them. The apostle said, "Count it all joy when ye fall into manifold temptations, knowing that the proving of your faith worketh patience."

"Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he hath been approved he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord promised to them that love him." Rightly meeting and victoriously resisting puts new fiber into the soul. The Indians say that when a warrior kills a foe the spirit of the vanquished enemy enters the victor's heart and adds to his own strength. This is true in spiritual warfare. Each evil conquered adds to the strength of our soul.

The question, then, is how to meet temptation so as to overcome and thus win the blessing there is in it. We must remember, first of all, that we are not able in ourselves successfully to fight our battles. If we think we are, and go forth in our own name and strength, we shall fail. Life is too large and its struggles and conflicts are too sore for the strongest human power unaided. We must settle it one and for all that we can conquer only in the name and by the help of the strong Son of God.

Then we must be sure that the temptation we are meeting really lies in the path of our duty. We pray each morning, "Lead us not into temptation;" we must, then, be sure that we are following our Father's leading when we enter any way of temptation. Only when the temptation comes in the path over which the Divine Guide takes us have we the assurance of protection in it.

Then, when we find ourselves in the presence of temptation we must not forget that we have something ourselves to do in getting the victory. Men and devils may tempt us, but men and devils cannot force us to yield. We are sovereigns in our choices which the right and the wrong stand before us.

Besides this, nothing more is needed but faith and prayer. When the temptation comes in the path of duty, and when we resist it with unflinching determination, we may with simple confidence commit our safety to God. No evil can ever harm us if we cleave unfaltering to Christ.

Fireman Is Hurt During CD Practice

A 31-year-old LaVale fireman was injured yesterday afternoon when a fire hose coupling pulled apart during a civil defense drill at Mt. Savage.

Warren Livengood, member of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital at about 5 p. m. with injuries of the left knee and right ankle. Attaches said his condition was good and will be held for observation and X-rays.

Firemen explained the drill was called to determine how much water could be pumped from the creek at Mt. Savage to the new Mt. Savage High School, located on a hill, in the event of an emergency.

Livengood was thrown into the stream by the force of the water from the broken hose, firemen said.

News In Brief

Fire Destroys Clayton Tavern Near Beans Cove

Owner Estimates Loss At $18,000

An early morning blaze raged through a tavern on the Beans Cove Road and caused damage estimated at $18,000, firemen reported yesterday.

Chief Harry M. DeHaven, of the Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company, said the fire resulted in a total loss of Clayton's Road House in nearby Pennsylvania.

He said the establishment was operated by Harold Clayton, former Cumberland business man, for his mother. It was formerly known as O'Leary's Tavern.

Chief DeHaven said the Baltimore Pike firemen, headed by Assistant Chief Joseph Bruner, and the Flintstone Volunteer Fire Company, were called to the blaze at 4:40 a. m.

The one-story log tavern was a mass of flames when firemen arrived, with no water available within a mile.

The fire companies used water from booster tanks to save a number of cabins adjacent to the tavern.

Clayton, who made his home in a nearby cabin, told firemen he was awakened about 4:30 a. m. yesterday to find the entire rear of the tavern in flames.

He told firemen the blaze sounded like a car backfiring. Clayton was able to save only a pinball machine as his wife ran to a telephone more than a mile away to summon firemen.

Firemen said Clayton estimated the loss from the building and its equipment at about $18,000, only partially covered by insurance.

Delegate Logan Seen In Line For Tax Post

BALTIMORE, June 28 (AP)—Del. John W. (Jack) Logan stepped up today as Governor McKeldin's likeliest choice for a month-old vacancy on the Maryland State Tax Commission.

Political pipelines gushed with reports that the 41-year-old majority leader in the House of Delegates would succeed William W. Travers, a fellow Eastern Shore Democrat.

The law calls for the three-member commission to include one member from the Shore, one from Baltimore City and one representing the Western Shore counties. No more than two of them may be from the same political party.

Since Travers' term expired June 1, the two remaining members are Republicans, Chairman Deceley K. Nice and Owen E. Hitchens.

Although Logan refused to confirm or deny reports that his appointment to the $5,000-a-year job would be announced soon, observers close to the situation said the word would come within a few days.

Logan was in the limelight during the 1953 Legislature as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which lopped almost two-million dollars off the budget proposed by the Republican Administration. It was a modern record for budget reductions by legislative groups.

A freshman in the House, Logan operates a cannery and lives in Denton.

If he's tapped for the Tax Commission, he must resign as a delegate, which could create a contest for the majority leadership.

Possible successors to that post include a fellow member of the Caroline County delegation, E. Layton Riggins; Upshur C. Stevenson of Talbot County; and A. Gordon Boone of Baltimore County.

Boone held the job in 1951 and 1952.

Traffic Law Enforcement Mark Cited

Maryland has won an honorable mention award in the annual citations made by the International Association of Chiefs of Police for outstanding performance in traffic law enforcement.

A plaque will be forwarded to Maryland by the group, and will be formally accepted on behalf of the Maryland State Police by its commander, Col. Elmer F. Munshower.

This is the fourth year that the association has honored police agencies for excellence in traffic work. The awards are based on evaluation of enforcement reports, which were furnished for Maryland by the State Police Statistical Division.

Winners are determined after reports are evaluated with the help of recommendations from the enforcement committee of the President's Highway Safety Conference. This is the first time that Maryland has received an award in the evaluation. The citations were based on enforcement work during 1952.

Judges for the competition included: Chief Emile E. Bugnon, Wood-ridge, New Jersey, chairman; Chief Carl F. Hansson, Dallas, Texas; and Chief W. J. Elliott, Texas Highway Patrol.

The judges were assisted by J. D. Hill, field representative of the National Safety Council.

Former Pastors Attend Church Homecoming

Four former pastors and a son of the church who entered the ministry all participated in homecoming and rededication ceremonies yesterday at Grace Methodist Church on Virginia Avenue.

Rev. Jesse P. Dawson, now of Prince Frederick, who was pastor of Grace Church from 1934 until 1940, preached at the morning worship service, attended by a congregation of about 300 persons.

Memorials Dedicated

At the morning service an altar, cross, candlesticks and a Bible for the Ladies Bible Class were dedicated as well as a pair of brass vases and new pews for the sanctuary. Rev. Adam E. Grim, pastor, said that most of these gifts were memorials to deceased members of the church.

Three other former pastors were participants in the evening worship last night. They were Rev. Allen B. Fisher, now of Gatch Memorial Church in Baltimore, who was pastor at the Virginia Avenue church from 1947 until 1952; Rev. Charles LeFevre, now pastor of Washington Square Church in Hagerstown, who was pastor here from 1940 until 1945; and Rev. Arthur L. Hunter, now pastor of the Haleshorpe Church near Baltimore, who was here from 1945 until 1947. Rev. Hunter was the preacher.

Son Of Church
Also present was Rev. Harry Amtower, who went into the ministry from Grace Church. He is now a teacher at Baltimore City College and is a supply pastor for churches in Baltimore.

About 150 persons attended a fellowship supper at the church at 6 o'clock.

Rev. Grim explained that the homecoming was arranged because of a number of improvements that have been made in the church property in the past three months. Included are new pews, new flooring, new carpets and an additional room.

Highway Crash Near Big Savage Hospitalizes Five

Three Cars Figure In Bad Smashup

Five persons were admitted to Miners Hospital in Frostburg early yesterday afternoon for treatment of injuries sustained in a collision involving three automobiles along National Highway west of Big Savage Mountain.

The hospitalized:
Bergen Fay Thompson, 56, of 206 Elder Street, chipped left kneecap and head lacerations. His wife, Mrs. Susie Thompson, about 55, rib injuries.

Howard Catley, 57, 13800 Fair Hill Road, Shaker Heights, Ohio, broken ribs and chest injuries.

His wife, Mrs. May Catley, 47, broken right leg and lacerations of head and legs.

Mrs. Elizabeth Leibler, 50, also of Shaker Heights, a passenger in the Catley car, broken finger, injuries to ankle and eye.

Hospital attaches said all five were resting fairly comfortably last night and were not considered in serious condition. The Ohio man sustained the most extensive injuries.

Trooper First Class Blair J. Buckle of Grantsville, who with Trooper First Class Donald R. Wade and Trooper Patrick W. Stakem investigated the crash, said that the accident occurred about 12:15 p. m. yesterday when Catley's automobile, headed east, skidded on the wet highway and collided with Thompson's west-bound car. It was raining slightly at the time.

A third automobile, driven east behind the Catley car by Willis Audrey Starcher, 40, 102 Hillcrest Road, Hagerstown, traveled off the highway and hit a guard rail on the right to avoid striking the Ohioan's car. Miss Shirley Royer, 24, RFD 1, Waynesboro, Pa., who was riding with Starcher, sustained injuries to her left wrist but was dismissed from Miners Hospital after receiving emergency treatment. Starcher was unhurt.

Also uninjured in the accident was Miss Ruth Catley, 14-year old daughter of the Shaker Heights couple. All three cars involved in the crash were damaged extensively. Trooper Buckle, who is continuing the investigation of the case, said last night that no charges have been filed.

Guard Begins Field Training

A. P. HILL MILITARY RESERVATION, Va., June 28 (AP)—Sunday was a day of rest for most, but not for the citizen-soldiers of the 29th Infantry Division.

This National Guard outfit, made up of troops from Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia, toiled under a hot sun in the first full day of summer training.

The men, weary from their long trip, reached camp last night and set about the business of pitching tents which will serve as home for the next two weeks.

All Saturday the signalmen, commanded by Lt. William L. DeCamp of Norfolk, were out in the field setting up telephone lines and power outlets. Officers, cooks, photographers and messengers all helped in stringing wire.

The division has its air arm, too. On hand are units of the divisional light aircraft. These are small planes known as "grasshoppers." They're the eyes of the 29th big guns, being used as spotters for direct artillery fire.

Major General William H. Sands, the 29th's commander, held briefing sessions with his commanders and observed first hand the many bivouac areas.

Water Tank Project

City workers have completed pouring concrete for the foundation of the North End Water Tank, which will be located on Chedwood Avenue. Three of the four piers are seen in the foreground. To the rear are parts of the 75,000 gallon tank which will be assembled in about a month, after the concrete foundation has cured. The tank will provide North Cumberland with a high pressure water system.
